Richardson to Replace Finch as HEW Chief?

Story Claims Secretary to Become Top Nixon Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was reported today to be planning to appoint Elliot L. Richardson, currently undersecretary of State, as his new secretary of health, education and welfare, succeeding Robert Finch.

Earlier, the Chicago Tribune reported that Finch would be moving from the HEW post to the White House as a top staff aide to Nixon.

Richardson, 49, came to Washington with the Nixon administration last year as the top State Department official under Secretary William P. Rogers.

A Republican, he was lieutenant governor of Massachusetts in 1965-67 and attorney general of that state prior to his taking the State Department assignment in January 1969.

During the administration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richardson served at HEW as an assistant secretary in 1957-59.

The Tribune said in its story, published in today's final edition that Nixon was expected to announce today that Finch would leave the Cabinet to become the President's top aide.

The agreement on Finch's change was concluded Friday during a White House meeting between Finch and Nixon, the Tribune added.

In Washington, a top aide to Finch said early today that Finch told him after the White House meeting that the secretary definitely did not submit his resignation and did not threaten to resign. However, the aide said he had no information of whether Finch and the President discussed a future resignation with Finch moving to the White House.

The Tribune story said one official reported Nixon asked Finch about 10 days or two weeks ago to make the change. This was about the time Finch left Walter Reed Hospital following several days of treatment for a numbness in his left arm.

Finch had been hospitalized just as he was preparing to speak before a meeting of HEW employes who were upset over Nixon's Cambodian military operation.

It is well known, the Tribune said, that Finch, a close friend and longtime political associate of the President, has been unhappy in his attempt to run the sprawling HEW department.

Finch reportedly would step into the White House post with authority over all present members of the staff.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy knelt today at the grave of her husband in Arlington National Cemetery on the second anniversary of his assassination.

Mrs. Kennedy arrived at the cemetery shortly before 7 a.m. She was accompanied by her brother-in-law, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and his wife, Joan. The senator laid several red roses on his brother's grave.

Kennedy, 42, was shot in the kitchen of a Los Angeles hotel.

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops also kept up their pressure today in other parts of Cambodia, and spokesmen in Phnom Penh said the current offensive is the enemy's largest and most widespread since U.S. and South Vietnamese troops entered the country's eastern provinces a month ago.

The enemy kept up heavy pressure on Kompong Cham, a provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh. The source in Phnom Penh said enemy troops had seized control of Highway 6 between the Cambodian capital and Kompong Cham and were barring even civilian traffic from the road.

This, the informant said, was only one of many indicators of the steadily deteriorating military situation in Cambodia.

Angkor Wat, 185 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, is the site of 40 square miles of some of the most imposing temple ruins in Cambodia. The government began evacuating tourists from the area Friday, but the airport was then closed and it was not known whether all of the tourists got out safely.

Officials Surprised

Sporadic fighting had been reported near the airport Friday. Military officials said then that the closest known North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces were 60 miles away and that the clashes probably involved Cambodian Communists, known as Khmer Rouge.

Death, Ruin Will Return?

Quake Area Is Danger Place

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peru's earthquake devastated area has experienced tragedy before and may well know death and ruin again.

That is the sober assessment of U.S. Geological Survey scientists who declare that sector of South America in the shadow of the mighty Andes is one of the most dangerous places in the world to live.

A United Nations official has estimated that 50,000 persons may have perished in the quake which struck Peru nearly one week ago.

Dr. George E. Ericksen, Survey specialist on Peru's geology, says the stricken area 175 miles north of Lima is "in an extremely active seismic belt."

Milder quakes than the series which killed uncounted thousands last weekend can send tons of unstable earth, glacial ice and fractured rock cascading down sheer mountain slopes into narrow valleys.

In addition, natives are afforded little protection from the debris in their homes. Typical house walls are made of mud or soft adobe brick and overloaded with heavy tile roofs that often collapse under shock, Ericksen said.

Ericksen said records show that "the west coast of South America has a major destructive earthquake nearly every year, with catastrophic earthquakes that occur every four or five years, resulting in hundreds or even thousands of deaths, and tens to hundreds of millions of dollars in property damages."

Ericksen noted the Huaras—major disaster scene last Sunday—was nearly destroyed 29 years ago when mud and rock sweeping down from a quake fractured glacial lake rim buried parts of the city to a depth of nearly 100 feet. Between 4,000 and 6,000 people were killed.

Bad as things were in Peru last weekend, Ericksen believes it could have been far worse. Had the major quake and aftershocks occurred at night, he said, people would have been inside their collapsing homes. He added, the tremors came in the afternoon instead of in the morning, when churches would have been crowded.

It can be a deadly experience for the alien.

"We've had about a dozen deaths since the first of the year involving illegal aliens," U.S. Atty. Harry Steward said. Five Mexicans were killed early Friday when a truck being pursued by Border Patrol officers crashed near Descanso in southeastern San Diego County.

Another alien was shot recently when he ran from guards at the Camp Pendleton Marine Base. Others have died of exposure or falls from cliffs while trying to hike over mountains and deserts of southeastern California.

"I don't know of any crime killing as many people around San Diego," Steward said. "And many aliens are found near death from suffocation in trunks of cars."

Border patrolmen said a major smuggler may make $1 million a year.

"We prosecuted a $300,000-a-year operation last year," said Steward, whose district covers the border counties of San Diego and Imperial.

"They come to get jobs at farms, factories, restaurants, hotels and in homes as domestic workers. Most go back to Mexico after they've earned some money."

If caught, a smuggler faces five years in prison and $5,000 fine for each alien involved.

The Border Patrol uses radar to detect movement along California's 200-mile southern border at night. They also patrol in airplanes, cars and four-wheel drive vehicles.

U.S. Denies North Korea Sunk Spy Ship

Says No American Vessels Operating In Haeju Waters

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea claims it sank a "heavily armed" U.S. spy ship in the Yellow Sea, but the U.S. Navy has denied the charge, saying it has no ships operating in the area.

South Korea announced Friday that one of its vessels, on a routine mission to prevent South Korean fishing boats from straying north of the border, was attacked by two North Korean patrol boats and towed off toward the north. North Korea issued its claim later in the day, and there was speculation the two Korean governments were referring to the same incident.

Associated Press Writer

North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency said an American spy ship "intruded deep into the coastal waters" about 11:30 p.m. Friday. "Officers and men of the navy of the Korean People's army . . . instantly sent to the bottom of the sea the enemy's armed spy ship," the broadcast said.

'No Ships'

The Navy reported in a statement issued in Washington: "The U.S. Navy had no ships of any kind operating in that area."

The North Korean dispatch said the ship was sunk off Haeju, about 50 miles south of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

The South Korean Defense Ministry said its boat was accosted by two North Korean vessels just south of the seaward extension of the Demilitarized Zone, about 70 miles west of the South Korean capital of Seoul.

The location given by the North Koreans would put the ship slightly north of the DMZ, and that given by the South Koreans would put it south of the line.

South Korean Brig. Gen. called the seizure a "premeditated attack." He did not say whether fire was returned or if there were casualties. There was no word on the condition of the crew.

But the English-language Korea Times reported without attribution that the South Korean boat returned fire with a 50mm machine gun until its engines stalled. The paper said it was believed the South Korean boat suffered heavy damage and that there were casualties among her crew. It added that a number of South Korean fighter jets were called to the scene, but were too late to intercept the North Koreans before they tugged the stricken craft north of the DMZ.

Chicago Raid

Draft Records Burners Guilty

CHICAGO (AP) — Ten anti-war activists have been convicted in U.S. District Court of destroying thousands of draft records in a raid on a Selective Service office.

All were convicted on all four counts of the indictment in a verdict returned Friday by a jury of seven men and five women. The maximum penalty is 23 years in prison and fines totaling $32,000. Sentencing is scheduled Tuesday.

Three of the defendants were not present to hear the verdict. They disappeared near the end of the five week trial, and warrants have been issued for their arrest.

Judge Edwin A. Robson revoked the bonds of the seven defendants who were in court. He said they are a menace to the community and he would be negligent in his duties if he allowed them to remain at large "to wreak the same havoc" elsewhere in the nation.

It is only a step from burning draft records to burning buildings, the judge said in denying defense motions that the seven remain free on bond pending sentencing. The defendants' actions amounted to anarchy, he said.

Bonds for the other defendants were revoked when they disappeared.

The defendants admitted during the trial that they took part in the raid on a complex of draft offices and destroyed records by pouring paint on them and dumping them into a bonfire.

But an attorney for four defendants argued that his clients were innocent on grounds they were "culturally insane" because their views on Vietnam and racism differ from those of the majority of Americans.

In his instructions to the jury, however, Judge Robson said that an individual's political beliefs are no basis for disobeying the law.

The four defendants represented by attorney Frank Oliver were examined by a psychiatrist who testified for the prosecution that all four were mentally sound and able to tell the difference between right and wrong at the time of the raid.

5 Per Cent Jobless

Unemployment Is Highest in Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five per cent of the nation's labor force was unemployed in May, the highest monthly rate since 1965, the Labor Department announced Friday.

The 5 per cent jobless figure was up from 4.8 per cent in April and 3.5 per cent last December and brings the total number of unemployed in the United States to 4.1 million, based on a seasonal adjustment that in the past has figured on an increase in employment in May.

In announcing the figure, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the earnings of a million rank-and-file workers was up two cents to $3.20 an hour, an increase of 19 cents an hour over a year ago. However, the country's highest inflation rate in two decades more than eliminated the wage gains.

The bureau said the jobless rate among Negroes was down from 8.7 to 8 per cent. That figure had been as low as 7.1 per cent just last March.

Actor Robert Stephens Plays Sherlock Holmes

Billy Wilder Movie New Look at Great Sleuth Created by Arthur Conan Doyle

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Stephens as Sherlock Holmes? Such a casting seemed outlandish to many people, including Robert Stephens.

He is considered by some critics to be the successor to Laurence Olivier as the most versatile and accomplished of English actors. The extent of his skill was seen locally as he played with Britain's National Theater at the Music Center in "The Beaux' Strategem" and "The Three Sisters." His costar was his wife, Maggie Smith, recently nominated for an Academy award for "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie."

Stephens has distinguished himself in classical and modern roles on the London stage and in films ("Morgan," "Romeo and Juliet"). Hence it seemed odd for him to take on Sherlock Holmes. But this was Billy Wilder's Sherlock Holmes.

Changes Mind

"At first I was certain that this was a part that I was not right for," recalled the actor. "But then I had one meeting with Billy, and I quickly became convinced."

Wilder had turned his attention from American manners and mores ("Some Like It Hot," "The Apartment," "Fortune Cookie") to the character of literature's greatest sleuth. He and long-time collaborator I.A.L. Diamond concocted a new tale that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle never dreamed of.

"The idea is that these are four cases which Dr. Watson had written about but which had been suppressed at the time because of the sensitivities of royalty," said Stephens. "In the stories Billy attempts to answer some of the questions raised about Holmes: his drug taking, his attitude toward women, his friendship with Dr. Watson."

Friendship in Focus

The latter will come into focus in "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes." As Wilder explained to Stephens: "The greatest love stories in movies have been between two men, whether in westerns, war stories or whatever."

The movie was completed last year in London. Shooting time was 29 weeks, with interruption for Stephens' illness.

"Before I started the picture, I had suffered pneumonia, yet I was appearing in a play and directing another," the actor said. "After an interval of one week, I went directly into production. After 11 weeks, I simply collapsed; I couldn't go on any more.

"After three weeks, I was able to continue. The interruption was good in one respect: it allowed Billy time to finish the script—as is his custom, he hadn't written the ending.

"The experience also taught me a healthy respect for film acting. I realized for the first time how much more exhausting it is than stage work. After all, in the theater you work only about three hours. But you have to get up for a movie at 6:30 in the morning and you seldom get home before 7 at night.

"Billy told me that in the old days the Hollywood stars generally took six to eight weeks between pictures and did nothing but play tennis and rest. Now I can understand why."

Safety Building Not Affected by Proposal

The city's share of the cost of the proposed city-county courts and safety building and similar projects financed through bonding would not be affected by Mayor George Buckley's proposed moratorium on capital spending, he said today.

Clarifying his moratorium proposal, he said it is aimed only at unbudgeted cash spending for land or buildings.

The purpose, he said, is to "give our contingent fund a break."

The mayor proposed the moratorium after the Board of Public Works earlier this week approved two land purchases totaling $49,500. The current city budget lacks funds earmarked for either purchase, and the contingency fund has been suggested as one possible source.

The fund was set at $138,962 as the year began, but its present status is unknown, according to Finance Director David Champion.

The works board receives Buckley's moratorium resolution in about two weeks. It would take effect Aug. 1 and extend through July 31, 1971.

The city currently is under a temporary moratorium on bonding, while awaiting preparation of a five-year capital improvements plan.

Cherry Order Gives Hope to State Growers

STURGEON BAY (AP) — A proposed marketing order that could help Wisconsin rebuild its faltering cherry industry was greeted without opposition Friday at a hearing in nearby Institute.

Cherry grower George Evenson of Sturgeon Bay said the proposal, if approved by growers, could "eliminate the rags and riches price system" that has often meant financial famine for orchard budgets.

The proposed federal red-tart cherry marketing order for the eastern half of the nation would help growers store the excess output of a bumper crop, guaranteeing a supply for the market in lean harvest years. Fresh cherries would not be involved.

Door County grows most of Wisconsin's red tart cherries.

A government hearing examiner from Washington, D.C., reminded growers that a similar marketing proposal was voted down in 1965.

But, he said, the 1965 plan included mandatory deduction of fees for a promotion fund, and the current plan does not include that controversial aspect.

Kiwanis to Hear of 4-H Club Objectives

LITTLE CHUTE — Programs and objectives of 4-H Clubs will be explained to Kiwanis Club members at a 6:15 p.m. Tuesday meeting at Werner's Supper Club with Darrel Schmalz as program chairman.

Speakers will be Mr. and Mrs Harold Schumacher and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Joosten, leaders of the Rainbow 4-H and Valley 4-H Clubs respectively. A question and answer period will follow the talks.

Democrats Vote Down Admission Of Young Bloc

GREEN BAY (AP) — Young Democrats were unable to muster enough support at the state Democratic convention Friday to win formal admission to the senior party.

The Wisconsin Young Democrats, whose members range in age from 14 to 25, had urged delegates to adopt an amendment under which they could enter the adult party by paying party dues.

The amendment was backed 298-291 by delegates, but needed a two-third backing to win approval.

Opponents of the amendment had said the simple dues requirement proposed in the amendment could flood the senior party with inexperience.

Resolution Asks For Withdrawal Now From War

veteran and once the nominee of the party for governor, cautioned that such a promise would be "flouting history."

Invariable Tendency

He apparently referred to the invariable tendency of state expenditures to rise, and taxation with them.

Instead, the committee proposed a plank promising a system of "fair taxes," with the elimination of the sales tax on utility bills, clothing, and other necessities.

Obviously recognizing that the next legislature, like most of its predecessors for the last two decades, will probably be obliged to raise more state treasury revenue, the subcommittee proposed a plank for higher corporation income taxes and higher personal income tax rates above the $15,000 income level, before increasing the tax liability of the middle and lower income earners.

But most of the first day's convention talk and interest centered on the Vietnam war, reflecting the dovish position of most of the Democrats now holding high office in Wisconsin and especially the state's Democratic congressional delegation.

Call for Court Inquiry

Among the resolutions on foreign affairs cleared by one committee for action by the convention was a demand for an international court inquiry into possible war crimes by the United States in Vietnam.

Another asked full disclosure of the country's commitment to the government of Laos and the extent of U. S. military operations in that country.

Still another resolution asks that if a President of the United States wages war without a formal declaration of hostilities by the Congress that he be subject to impeachment.

The foreign relations subcommittee discussions were the most indignant and prolonged of numerous committee sessions Friday afternoon. One delegate called the government of South Vietnam "one of the most corrupt in history," and no one in the hearing room disputed him.

'Forget Rhetoric'

At the same time Delegate Robert Riley of Milwaukee urged his fellow politicians to "forget the emotional rhetoric" and adopt resolutions and a platform that will elect Democrats.

Other proposals cleared for the convention platform committee asked for the elimination of ROTC from Wisconsin university campuses and for Democratic party support for the protection of the peaceful functioning of the state campuses, with assurance of full academic freedom at the schools.

Subcommittee deliberation also indicated that the party will condemn the Republican state administration for putting the board of regents of the state university systems under Republican control, without acknowledging that previous Democratic governors chose from their own party ranks also when it fell to them to fill vacancies on the higher education governing boards.

Officials Search For Missing New Holstein Girl

NEW HOLSTEIN—Calumet County authorities are continuing investigation today of the reported disappearance of a 17-year-old route 1 girl.

They were called to the girl's home about 7:30 p.m. Friday by the girl's mother, who reported her daughter had gone horseback riding. The animal returned home without the girl.

A ground search of the immediate area followed.

Authorities theorize that the girl may have attempted to run away from home, since several pieces of her clothing are missing from the home.

Site Choice Still Knotted

Jones Park to be Considered For Joint Safety Building

The site issue on the proposed Appleton-Outagamie County safety building remained deadlocked Friday but there were indications a new proposal would be ready to go to the County Board adn City Council in July.

With total rejection of the county farm by the city council as a location, Appleton representatives on the joint safety building committee moved to put the building "in Jones Park," which is located one block northeast of the courthouse.

Supvs. Russell DeLa Hunt and Delmar Schmeichel, along with Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson, opposed it. The seventh member, Supv. Jerome Hiler, was absent.

Site Study

While the 3-3 vote technically killed the proposal, all six members of the committee agreed to ask a study of the site by the Fox Valley Council of Governments and the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and to hold another meeting of the joint committee either at the end of next week or on June 15.

Ald. Robert Roemer, a member of the joint committee and most outspoken foe of a joint venture, said that he would support a joint safety building if the site were acceptable to him. He considered Jones Park acceptable, he said. The site is in his ward.

At the same time, DeLaHunt, who is chairman of the County Board, indicated he would push for a final solution at the July County Board meeting

He said he was considering holding the board in continuous session until a decision was reached

Decision Date

"The procrastination has to stop," DeLaHunt said. "Whether or not the city wants to be a party, they now have a date by which to decide. This is not an ultimatum. It is just that our needs are that urgent."

On Thursday night, the County Board's Public Property and Parks Committee voted to ask the county to end the joint negotiations and go it alone unless positive action was taken by the joint committee today. The communication from the committee was filed by the joint committee.

Donald Stone, Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce manager, along with Carl Sorcie, business representative of the Appleton Building and Trades Council, urged action. "These people (chamber and union members) are disturbed about the lack of action in regard to the safety building. They want it solved," Stone said.

He added that the chamber has repeatedly voiced its support for a site adjacent to the courthouse.

The 3-3 vote came after both groups had caucused on their strategy.

Ald. Norman Beyer, who made the motion to select Jones Park, said that was the site recommended in the city's comprehensive plan prepared by Harland Bartholomew & Associates.

Doves Active at State Convention

Democrat Resolution Asks Withdrawal Now

Post-Crescent Staff Writers

GREEN BAY — The South Vietnamese government and Asian war came under heavier attack than the Republican administration of Richard Nixon as the annual state convention of the Wisconsin Democratic party began Friday at the Brown County Arena.

In what will almost surely be the major topic of the convention, a platform sub-committee recommended to the delegates a resolution condemning American participation in the war and calling for immediate withdrawal of American forces in Southeast Asia, asked for admission of Red China to the United Nations, proposed an international court to judge American actions, and generally suggested the ultra dove position on war and armament.

About 800 delegates were on hand at the first general session of the convention at the Brown County Arena last night.

About 1,800 delegates are eligible to attend.

More Expected

Attendance was expected to swell today, when the convention is scheduled to act on a long list of platform suggestions and resolutions screened by subcommittees Friday

With a general conviction among delegates that the party's prospects for victory in the state elections in the fall probably are more hopeful than in half a dozen years, the subcommittees examined platform proposals with unusual care

Major propositions emerging from the sub-committees last night included:

—An unexpected refusal by a committee on taxation and finance to propose repeal of the "Republican" four per cent general sales tax, in the event Democrats win control of the statehouse in November

Verbosity Refined

—A refinement by another sub-committee of three verbose proposals on law, order and justice that emerged as a single sentence recommendation that the party "recognize and support the right of all students and Americans citizens to dissent and protest (but) we nonetheless oppose the use of force, violence and destruction" in the name of dissent.

—A bid for the youth vote by another sub-committee in the form of a proposed plank asking for more student and faculty involvement in the administration of educational institutions and educational processes

—A skittish proposal by the same sub-committee that the party set up a special commission to examine the recommendations of the Republican-originated Kellett task force report on education which has aroused stiff resistance within the educational establishment of the state.

The Democrats who worked on the law and order proposals for the campaign platform blamed Republican law enforcement officers for failing, as they put it, to enforce existing laws and controls on demonstrations.

They carefully added a statement that non-protesting students must be assured the right to attend classes at their schools.

The taxation sub-committee, which included three members of the legislature, had been handed a proposal by a platform planning committee which included a pledge to avoid a tax increase if the party is given power in Madison

But State Sen. Carl Thompson of Dale County, a legislative

Interrupts Speakers

Candidate for House Ejected From Session

GREEN BAY (AP) —A candidate for Congress was ejected from the floor of the state Democratic convention Friday night after refusing a chairman's order to keep still

Don Lass of West Allis, a candidate for the seat held by Milwaukee Rep Clement Zablocki, fell to his hands and knees in front of the Brown County Arena during a scuffle with officials who escorted him to the door.

"Armed Camp"

"I'm a candidate for Congress and I've got a right to be in there," Lass protested as he was hustled out of the arena

"I'm a delegate, and I have a right to speak," he argued. "We've got an armed camp around here."

Sheriff Norb Froehlich helped sergeants at arms remove Lass after the convention chairman, State Sen. Fred Risser ordered patrols to clear aisles, specifically of Lass.

Risser received a round of applause from delegates when he rapped his gavel in hope of silencing Lass, who has repeatedly shouted: "Mr. chairman, point of order."

Lass went from one floor microphone to another, trying to get Risser's recognition.

He said: "They're trying to bury my resolutions," which included a censure of the war in Vietnam and a compliment for civil rights leader James E. Groppi of Milwaukee.

Risser ignored the shouting as long as he could. Lass continued his appeals during the keynote address by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., who similarly tried to ignore the outbursts.

Officials alternately pleaded with Lass, and wrestled with him. They eventually took him by the arms and led him to the sidewalk.

"Will you please leave?" Froehlich pleaded, nudging Lass out a door. "I'm asking you a favor."

Two sheriff's cars, lights flashing, pulled up at the curb Some of Lass' associates, one of them apparently a lawyer, helped escort the candidate across the street to a private car.

Lass was heard to say to his companion: "I demand that you sue the sheriff of Brown County."

Clintonville Students Fly Over Valley

Aerospace Science Class Ends Course With Hour Flights

CLINTONVILLE—Twenty-six juniors and seniors at the senior high school this week completed their aerospace science class instruction with hour-long flights over the Fox Valley.

Three students went on each flight from the municipal airport here, to Green Bay, Appleton and back here. The students changed positions in the plane at the stops so each had an opportunity to observe the pilot's handling of the plane during the triangular cross-country flight.

Max Sagunsky of Maxair, Inc., Appleton, was the pilot.

Robert McMahon teaches the science class, which started in 1966. The students study weather, radio aerodynamics, navigation and flight in general. The class also has been on a field trip to the control tower and Green Bay airport.

Facing Major Problems

Outagamie Wants Reactivation of Urban Study Unit

Reactivation of the urban counties committee of the Wisconsin County Boards Association will be sought by Outagamie County to take up major problems facing the more populous counties in the state.

Among the questions the county would like considered are those of the public defender, county assessor and county institutions administration.

The urban counties committee was created at last year's boards association convention at the request of association President Myron Lotto of Brown County and included the county board chairmen of the 10 largest counties. Its purpose was to take up problems of special interest to those counties.

Only one meeting, however, was ever conducted, on the county executive issue, and none has been held since November.

'More Weight'

County Administrator Alvin Woehler told the board's rules and legislative committee Friday that action through this urban counties committee would carry more weight than attempting to gain legislation alone.

The public defender issue has been before the board's law enforcement committee owing to the rising cost of court appointed attorneys for indigent defendants.

State law presently is unclear as to whether a county may create the position. Corporation Counsel Frank Templeton said Racine County has created the post but has not filled it.

Woehler also asked for a complete study of the county assessor situation. "This is extremely important since it represents the basis for the local tax structure," he said.

One Board Eyed

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt also suggested a study toward seeking legislation to permit a single board to govern all county institutions. State law now required separate boards for each facility.

This legislation had been recommended in the Blue Ribbon committee report 30 months ago for consolidation of county institutional facilities.

DeLaHunt asked the county to seek a formal, attorney general's opinion to clarify the appointive power of the county administrator and county executive as it concerns county institution trustees.

Budget Goes to Regents Today

Record $135.1 Million Sought For State University System

MADISON (AP) — A record $135.1 million budget for operating the State University System in 1970-71 was sent to the Board of Regents for final approval today.

The budget, up 10 per cent over the 1969-70 level, calls for an average six per cent faculty pay boost.

State tax funds in the budget total $62 million, up $3.3 million from the present year.

Student fees would account for a portion of the total. Tuition increases already approved would include $28 per year for resident undergraduates, $26 for graduate students and $62 for non-resident graduate students.

New annual budget figures for the schools starting July 1, compared with the current year ending June 30 include:

Eau Claire, $15,651,686—$14,332,017; La Crosse, $12,669,491—$11,656,560; Oshkosh, $20,779,705—$19,097,006; Oshkosh-Fond du Lac facility, $863,295—$582,995; Platteville, $11,020,188—$10,786,895; Richland campus, $670,143—$590,984; River Falls, $9,045,717—$8,465,253; Stevens Point $16,650,520—$13,702,442; Medford campus, $293,486 — $221,502; Stout, $12,682,787 — $10,599,604; Barron campus, $836,609—$684,865; Superior, $7,375,763—$6,853,972; Whitewater, $17,552,398—$16,566,323.

Tuition levels will be $320 for resident undergraduates, $1,250 for out-of-state undergraduates, $378 for resident graduate students, and $1,550 for non-resident graduate students.

System director Eugene McPhee, in his report to the regents budget committee, noted the legislature had cut support for supplies and capital from $131 per student to $127 per student.

"If inflationary increases are also included, the reduction would be approximately 15 per cent for the biennium," McPhee said.

The legislature also provided staff and funds to operate new buildings but "at a reduced level," McPhee said. The legislature also reduced the teacher improvement program from $927,000 to $463,800 for the upcoming year, he added.

Other budget highlights included an additional $130,000 for building security projection.

Stockbridge Center Has Good Year

28 School Children Enrolled in Courses Giving Special Help

STOCKBRIDGE — The reading, learning and communication center, conducted through the year at the public schools here, had a total of 28 pupils from public and nonpublic schools attending. It is directed by Mrs Donald Ortlieb.

Tests were given and an analysis of each child's progress and work made. Individual copies of each evaluation sheet were compiled for those attending, as well as for the permanent file and for the parents.

An evaluation of the program was carried on throughout the year. Questionnaires were completed by pupils, parents and faculty. Faculty meetings were held to evaluate the program, and discuss the children's needs for the future. Conferences will be continued and home visits will be made when necessary to continue the evaluation of the program

A final evaluation is being prepared to be sent to the State Department of Public Instruction. Many comments and suggestions have been made and will be considered to continue to make the program run smoothly, according to Mrs. Richard Volp, coordinator, who expressed appreciation to those who helped to make it a success

Two Youths Face Charges Of Robbery

Detectives Arrest Pair Accused of Beating Companion

Appleton detectives have arrested and charged with robbery two youths they believe beat and robbed a 19-year-old northside youth early Tuesday in the driveway of his home.

Mark R. Vandertie, 800 W. Packard St., and John E. Huff, 1625 N. Bennett St., both 19, were taken into custody by detectives about 1 p.m. Friday at their homes.

Police say the pair took $83 from Kenneth W. Tischer's billfold after they jumped him and beat him in the driveway of his home. Tischer, who lives at 2029 N. Appleton St., told police he had been out drinking with them prior to the attack. He sustained a cut lip in the fracas.

The two youths, both of whom graduated from Appleton High School-West Thursday night, made a brief appearance in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Friday afternoon.

Waupaca's Ninth Death

Fremont Girl, 16, Killed in Accident

WEYAUWEGA — Elizabeth Ann Abhold, 16, daughter of Mrs. Vera Abhold, route 2, Fremont, was killed instantly about 12:40 a.m., today when the car in which she was riding struck a tree on County Trunk U, four miles south of here.

She is the county's ninth traffic victim. Her death raises Wisconsin's 1970 highway traffic toll to 419, compared with 389 on this date a year ago.

Driver of the car, Paul Trader, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Trader, route 3, Waupaca, is in fair condition at Riverside Community Hospital, Waupaca.

The car, traveling south on County Trunk U, two miles west of U.S. 10, left the roadway and traveled on its top 500 feet along the ditch and wrapped itself around a tree.

Trader was pinned in the car and removed from the wreckage by county police.

Miss Abhold's body was taken to the Cline, Hanson, Dahlke Funeral Home.

Democrats Blast GOP Attitude

Obey Says Nation Must be United

GREEN BAY — Wisconsin Democrats Friday heard the attitude of some Nixon Administration spokesmen toward dissenters described as a "throwback to the divine right of kings."

Rep. David Obey of Wausau called for an "American strategy" to unite the country as he delivered the keynote address opening the three-day convention of the state party.

Some 3,000 Democrats were expected to attend the sessions in the Brown County arena to set policies and commune with party leaders and office-seekers in preparation for the fall election campaigns.

The 7th District congressman chided the Nixon Administration for lecturing rather than leading, and he held up the example of Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican President, for both parties to follow.

Assume Infallibility

Obey charged that from the outset some members of the Nixon Administration have assumed "the infallibility of its judgment and the power of its reason—a sort of Washington throwback to the divine right of kings."

He said Lincoln's presidency showed the need to avoid "the mistake of deliberate insensitivity to another man's point of view, the mistake of confusing needless invective with leadership, and of morality with posturing."

Alluding to the reports of a Nixon "southern strategy," Obey said Lincoln also showed "that this nation does not need a northern strategy or a southern strategy or an eastern strategy or a western strategy, but rather an American strategy." He said the Democratic Party has followed such a policy and can do so again

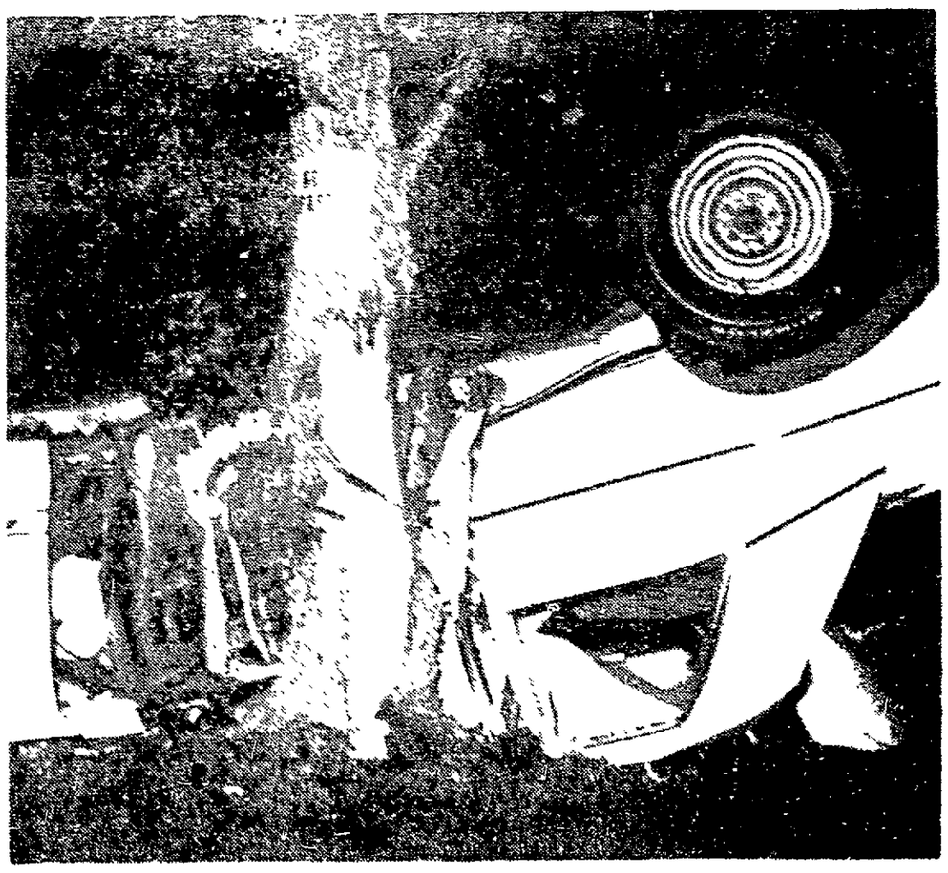

Dealing with dissent "is where a government's generousity of spirit is sorely tested," he continued, saying it is particularly a problem for a government which "equates silence with consent, if not with perfect patriotism."

Not Always Valid

Saying such an assumption is valid only when "public quietude actually stems from public confidence," Obey said it would not be made "by any government with a due sense of the fallibility of its judgment and the uncertainties of history."

"Some members of this Administration," Obey accused, "have on occasion dismissed dissent, intimidated the press, ignored working people, paralyzed small business. That was not Lincoln's way, and it should not be either party's way today." He advised following the Civil War President's theme, "malice toward none and charity toward all."

He urged the party to be "fair enough to recognize wisdom and vision, no matter on which side of the political aisle it is found," and to worry about the country rather than the party's condition.

Elizabeth Ann Abhold, 16, route 2, Fremont, was killed outright early today when this car in which she was riding crashed into a tree on Waupaca County Trunk U. The driver, Paul Trader, 18, route 3, Waupaca, is reported in "fair condition" at Riverside Community Hospital. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Meet State Rules, Dump Owners Told

OSHKOSH — A State Department of Natural Resources DNR notice last week to operators of the Miles Kimball reclamation project specified six requirements to bring the landfill dump to compliance with state solid waste disposal standards.

A letter to Al Giuliani, project manager, said that open burning must be restricted and called for adequate diking and diversion of surface runoff.

Allan F. Schoen, DNR district engineer, said he had investigated the site, off State 110 adjacent to Lake Butte des Morts, May 26 and concluded that the project is in violation of the state administrative code.

Schoen said he would recommend a conditional license when the maanger provides two copies of a license application for solid waste disposal operations, two copies of the description of the landfill operation, a copy of a $1,000 surety bond, a copy of a permit to operate from the City of Oshkosh, and the $100 license fee to DNR for the 1969 and 1970 licensing periods.

Schoen said that to comply with the state's standards, in effect since March 12, 1969, the operator must discontinue open burning except when it is conducted under supervision with the permission of the local fire prevention agency and then only when it can be done in a nuisance-free manner and without conflict with local or state air pollution control requirements.

Diking Required

Further, there must be adequate diking around the exterior of the disposal operation to prevent leaching to surface waters;

Surface run-off must be diverted around or through the disposal site;

Dumping of solid waste must be confined to as small an area as practical;

Areas of the site that are at finished grade must be abandoned as provided by the state standard; and

The license number must be posted at the site entrance when it is obtained.

City officials said last week that a nearby Riverside Cemetery dump has been discontinued as a part of an effort to abate pollution of the adjacent waterway. Both sites drain from old log storage ponds to the waterway.

Graduation at Clintonville

'Sensitivity to Falsehoods Greater in Today's Youth'

CLINTONVILLE — "Perhaps the false hoods and inequities confronting this generation are not very different from those of a few decades ago," commented Supt. V. J. Wadleigh Thursday to the 1970 high school graduating class.

"The difference may only be in a sensitivity to them."

Wadleigh spoke to the graduates and guests on "Challenge and Change."

"Few periods in history have not been troubled and uncertain. Each of us must choose a response to the challenge," he said.

"The rebel who overturns society's conventions assumes the greater obligation to construct new and better conventions. It is by far the more difficult pursuit

"Yours may be the generation that does battle for constructive change in the American way.

'Universal Work'

"I hope that your energy, your drive, and your fight will be directed toward universal undertakings — those that will determine what kind of people we really are and what kind of lives we shall lead.

"Accept the greater responsibility of being a positive force for change through your own personal example.

"The charge is basic — it begins right here in the heart. The words of Confucius, almost 2,500 years old, point the way in very simple, honest language:

"'The ancients who wished to illustrate the highest virtue throughout the empire first ordered well their own states. Wishing to order well their states, they first regulated their families, they first cultivated their own selves. Wishing to cultivate their own selves, they first rectified their hearts. Wishing to rectify their hearts, they first sought to be sincere in their thoughts Wishing to be sincere in their thoughts, they first extended to the utmost their knowledge. Such extension of knowledge lay in the investigation of things.

'Tranquil Land'

"'Knowledge became complete...thoughts sincere...hearts rectified . . . selves cultivated . . . families regulated . . . (and) states rightly governed (and) the whole empire was made tranquil and happy.'"

Graduates Told To Serve Lord

Graduates of Fox Valley Lutheran (FVL) High School were commended with a prayer and urged to "serve the Lord" as they ended their high school careers Friday night.

"You have the same choice that Joshua and the people of Israel had," the Rev. Erwin Ploetz, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, Dale, told 106 seniors at commencement exercises.

"But just because you've decided it tonight, that doesn't mean you've got it made," he added.

Trials and temptations are to be expected, the Dale pastor warned, as he turned his back on the audience to face the graduates seated in a semicircle behind him during his address.

"You can't pass the buck anymore and say, 'The school doesn't permit it,'" he noted. "No one can decide it but you—and if you can think you can do it alone, you're lost before you begin."

Answer in Holy Spirit

The answer lies in the presence of the Holy Spirit in the Christian's heart, Ploetz said. "He shall make it possible for you to confess, 'We shall serve the Lord.'"

Echoing the theme was Rochelle Greve, Appleton, one of two student speakers.

There has been a "powerful influence motivating us, the power of Christ," she said. "All that we are must be credited to Christ himself."

Life ahead is uncertain, but "He who sustained me in the past will not desert me in the future," she noted, citing the words of the Apostle Paul, "I can do all things through Christ

Life ahead is uncertain, but "He who sustained me in the past will not desert me in the future," she noted, citing the words of the Apostle Paul, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me."

Classmate Richard Kanzenbach, New London, discussed the reasons for the existence of a parochial high school like FVL.

Parents Remember Ephesians

He said that parents send their children to the school because they remember Ephesians 6:4, which urges parents to rear their children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

"We have been educated accordance with God's wor he said, adding that it necessary to approach script as the "newborn babes desiring the sincere milk of the word" referred to in I Peter 2:2.

"I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever" from Psalm 23 is the class motto, speaker noted.

"These words in themselves aptly express, 'Why FVL?'" said.

The Rev. Harold Warnke, Principal, called on the graduates to go out and "conquer new worlds with the help of the Lord" in remarks before the presentation of diplomas.

"The faculty has mixed emotions" at graduation, he said. "We have put some of our lives into you people."

But the former teachers of the new graduates rejoice at such a time, he added. "We've sown the seed and done some watering. May the Lord give the increase."

Dying System Reviving

Prospects for Church-Run Schools Getting Brighter

NEW YORK (AP) — When things looked worst, the prospects for the future of church-run schools today are brightening. What only recently was viewed by some experts as a dying system now seem to have a chance.

But some keen struggles over the matter, in courts and legislatures, lie ahead.

Several developments, coming in the midst of the intensifying financial crisis among parochial schools, have brought about their improved outlook, including:

—Signs of a shift in public and political attitudes toward preferring government aid to such schools, rather than facing the high costs of accommodating their nearly 5.5 million students in expanded public schools.

—Five states, Michigan, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Rhode Island, have adopted measures in the last two years (Michigan just this spring) providing "secular" services and salary supplements to nonpublic schoolteachers. A sixth state, Iowa, last month passed a bill allowing funds for auxiliary services.

'Parochaid'

—Similar so-called "parochaid" measures are brewing in more than 25 other states. In some cases, as in Wisconsin and Maryland, they lost out narrowly this year, but would be revived next. Elsewhere, action still was to come. Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie backed a $29-million aid measure for nonpublic schools, saying failure to provide it could mean their "total collapse."

—Aside from such direct salary subsidies, a recent survey shows 22 other states now provide some peripheral aid such as pupil transportation, textbooks, health services or equipment. New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has indicated the present $46 million annually spent for such purposes will be upped by $20 million. Meanwhile, a referendum is pending to repeal the state's "Blaine amendment" barring direct aid.

—President Nixon last month set up a special commission to look into problems of parochial schools, saying they provide an important diversity and "add a spiritual dimension" to education, but that their survival now is threatened. "No government can be indifferent to the potential collapse of such schools, he said."

Affirmed Value

Msgr. James Donohue, of Washington, D.C., head of the U.S. Catholic Conference's Division of Elementary and Secondary Education, says this apparently was the first time an American president has specifically affirmed the special value of nonpublic schools.

Presently there are about 12,000 Catholic elementary and secondary schools in the country enrolling about five million pupils—down by a million pupils in the last five years through closing of about 1,000 schools.

They've been shutting down at the rate of more than 300 a year. Msgr. Donohue predicts that the shrinkage would amount to another two million pupils—nearly half the remaining enrolment—in the next six years unless there is a major upsurge in public support for such education.

A shortage of nuns as teachers, forcing the hiring of lay teachers at around $6,000 annually—more than three times what nuns get—has been the main financial strain to the church schools, along with other cost rises.

High Cost

Nixon said if these schools were forced out of business, the cost of taking their pupils into public schools would amount to $4 billion a year, plus another $5 billion for expanding public facilities.

A Protestant theologian, the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Lynn, of Union Theological Seminary, says Catholic schools now are a "public venture" and Protestants must begin reconsidering methods for giving them tax aid.

Such aid is commonly provided in Western Europe and Canada. The Rev. C. Albert Koob, president of the National Catholic Education Association, says the onetime "bitter opposition" to any government aid seems to be fading.

Nevertheless, there still is opposition, along with lawsuits challenging such aid in 21 states, including suits against the plans in Ohio, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island for supplementing teacher salaries in parochial schools.

To Your Good Health

Vitamin Intake, Use, Retention Explained

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I learned from your column that vitamin C is not harmful in large doses as the body throws off what it doesn't need.

What about vitamins B-12 and A and niacin? Does the body store these and would they be harmful if taken daily? Niacin seemed to improve my circulation.—H.L.A.

That's right about vitamin C—but by the same token, you should therefore have your vitamin C every day in citrus or tomato juice. Or, of course, the fresh fruit.

Vitamin B-12 may be stored in the liver for three or four years, so you can tolerate a temporary shortage of it. (Sources are meats, cereals, brewer's yeast, milk and eggs.) This is not toxic, so you needn't worry about getting too much.

Vitamin A is a somewhat different matter. It also is stored in the liver, but large doses can be toxic, causing enlargement of the liver, stunted growth in young people, and bone pain.

However, it takes a lot of overdosing to cause trouble, and would occur only in people taking husky amounts daily over a period of time. In general, physicians limit vitamin A to no more than 50,000 units a day (as in treating acne) and usually don't give it in that quantity for more than a few months.

You aren't going to get enough just from your food to cause trouble. Sources are fats, oils, whole milk, yellow and dark green vegetables.

Now niacin. It also is stored in the liver. You mentioned that it seemed to help your circulation. It does (So does nicotinic acid.) This comes from its being a vasodilator—that is, it expands blood vessels, so more blood flows, this can be accompanied (quite reasonably) with flushing of the skin and a tingling sensation, but there is no danger.

Food sources are meats, legumes, nuts, brewer's yeast, milk and eggs.

The vitamins which should not be consumed in large quantities are A and D, but in either case, there is little if any risk of getting too much unless a person is taking large doses in the form of medication—capsules or such forms. You won't get too much just from food.

Dr. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told that when cataracts are removed, the doctor does one eye and then waits seven to 10 days before doing the other. Is he sure in that length of time that the first operation is a complete success?—G. L.

That isn't the purpose. The purpose is just a precaution. Infection is rare in this type of surgery but, after all, infection is a risk that attends surgery of any kind. Better to let one eye heal first rather than permit the risk, however remote, of infection occurring and affecting both eyes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What type of doctor removes excess hair?—R.H.

Permanent hair removal is done by electrologists. Your regular doctor probably can refer you to one. Anyway, be sure that you go to a registered electrologist.

Note to Mrs. W.J.E.: Hodgkins disease is a dangerous one that used to be fatal; today, with radiation treatment given in its early stages, it is being treated with great success.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is nevertheless vital to human life. For this reason, Dr. Thosteson has entitled his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Song-Sermon Series Set at Open Bible

A "Song and Sermon" series will be featured in Church of the Open Bible Assembly of God in the Sunday morning worship services during the month of June.

The Rev. Earl S. Henning, pastor, who also is a singer, will be featured. Since the age of nine, he has been singing publicly and on radio broadcasts.

While still in high school, he managed a male quartet and sang baritone in it. They sang on the radio and made area appearances in the Quincy, Ill. vicinity—his home town. During college days he sang with the Gospel Ambassadors Quartet and other musical groups.

In addition to singing on the church's local radio broadcast, "Echoes of Calvary," at 8:45 a.m., Sundays, Henning has sung at many area churches and functions.

In the Sunday morning series during June, he will sing the songs, "How Great Thou Art," "The Holy City," "He That Dwelleth In The Secret Place," (Psalm 91) and "The Lord's Prayer," and preach on related topics. The services begin each Sunday at 10:45 a.m.

Racism Wins Again for Wallace

When George Wallace was campaigning in Wisconsin in the 1964 presidential primary, one story told in his entourage was how Wallace had lost an election early in his Alabama career and what he had learned from it. Wallace had been "outniggered" in that election and he would never let that happen again, it was explained.

This was a strange and terrible expression for Wisconsin politics. What is more terrible is that Wallace still is using such strategy and that it worked in his desperate effort to win back the Alabama governorship to form a political base for another third party campaign for the presidency.

Wallace ran behind Gov. Albert Brewer in the May Democratic primary. Brewer had campaigned on the basis of being a full-time governor uninterested in presidential politics and a governor who would not bring Alabama the strife which is bound to come from Wallace's playing with state issues for national affect. But Wallace knew how to turn things around in the run-off election.

If he lost, said Wallace, the black man would take over control of Alabama politics for the next 50 years, somehow accomplishing this despite his minority status on the voting rolls. Wallace denounced bloc voting, a code word for the Negro vote. That this had happened in the primary was beyond dispute. But who were the Negroes to vote for, the national champion of school segregation and halting of equality in civil rights?

Wallace's return to the governorship raises the question of how the two national parties will respond to his new power base, particularly the Republican party which has advocates for a southern strategy.

One view is that the type of campaign Wallace had to resort to means that he now is only a regional candidate. But this is only whistling in the dark for the type of prejudice appealed to by Wallace is not limited to the South. The only responsible policy for the two national parties is to stand for equality in civil rights and enforcement of the law rather than trying to compete with Wallace by being fuzzy on civil rights. The Alabama election has shown that the extremist votes will be Wallace's in any event.

The Wallace election should also put some zip into Congress to pass the constitutional amendment to discard or modernize the electoral college system of naming the president. The Wallace strategy is to prevent either of the major presidential candidates from receiving an electoral college majority which would throw the election into the House of Representatives where each state would have one vote regardless of population. The resulting crisis and political wheeling and dealing is frightening to speculate upon.

An amendment for direct election of the president or for modification of the electoral college must be approved by three-fourths of the states, and time is growing short to have one ready in time for the 1972 election. If the amendment is now broken loose in Congress, at least one good thing will have come from Wallace's election in Alabama.

Tops in Madison

The capital city of Madison is perhaps familiar to more of the residents of Wisconsin than any of its other major communities, for many reasons. Hundreds of thousands of Wisconsin residents made frequent tours of the city during their school days. Tens of thousands of adults regularly visit the city on business problems related to the state government and its numerous departments including the legislature when it sits. There are some scores of thousands of our leading citizens who spent the formative years of their youth and young adulthood in Madison as students at the University of Wisconsin.

There must have been considerable curiosity in the minds of many of these residents in other parts of Wisconsin during recent months, therefore, as they read the news dispatches about the eruption of a number of "lounges", as their proprietors euphemistically call them, which feature high priced beverages, darkened interiors, and nude dancers in the spotlight as the major attraction.

Most of them were "topless", as the phrase goes nowadays, and some of them were even more tasteless. For a community which is the governmental and academic center of Wisconsin and whose civic boosters once proudly called it "the Athens of the West", these were curiously vulgar enterprises for Madison to tolerate, indeed.

That they should have been permitted to operate for so many months is not easily explained. But it is reassuring that the municipal government of the political center of our proud state has at long last realized the crude error of its recent indifference toward such tasteless exhibitions. Under the prodding of Mayor Dyke, the city council has enacted an ordinance which will provide for the summary revocation of the license of any such establishment that provides such performances in the name of "entertainment." The wonder is that the decision required so much time, and that one of the capital city newspapers which has for so many years been preoccupied with looking down its editorial nose at the defects of other Wisconsin communities, real or imagined, should have regarded the commercialization of nudity with such casualness for so long.

Vermont Acts to Curb Billboards

Some months ago the legislature in Vermont recommended that limited amounts of public funds be spent in that state to encourage tourism on the grounds that too many tourists were ruining the beauties of the state, and that such a development was self-defeating. The legislature now has taken an even more drastic step in an effort to preserve the natural beauty.

Actually the law was passed in 1968 but is being gradually inplemented to remove from Vermont highways all off-premise billboards. It set up a seven member Travel Information Council to administer the new law and make regulations. Members of the Council include the secretary of state, representatives of restaurant, resort and recreational industries, agricultural interests, the Department of Highways and the Scenery Preservation Council.

This summer a favorite resort section of Vermont in Windham and Windsor counties will experiment with the new plan. There will be no large individual advertising signs. Instead there will be a series of small markers indicating goods and services, tourist activities, food, lodging and gasoline. The signboard then lists the names of the places offering such services. The signs are of different colors and usually grouped, never more frequent than five miles apart or closer than five miles to a built up area. Near the larger towns, lighted panels that permit the listing of perhaps 80 businesses with an advertisement map and pictures have been put up and are called "maplazas." In addition, the Council is putting out a free pamphlet listing resorts, restaurants and recreational opportunities and also containing paid ads from various businesses giving more detail.

Hawaii has had a similar billboard ban since the 1920's and currently there is growing pressure in Oregon to enact similar provisions. The United States Congress in 1965 passed the Highway Beautification Act which prohibits billboards along interstate highways but it also provided for compensation to the advertising business which would have run to about $560 million so little has been done. The Supreme Court of Vermont ruled that the value of billboards depends upon their overlooking a public highway so that no compensation is needed although some owners have been permitted to amortize the original investment by leaving a sign for a few more years.

The reason the Vermont law was enacted was primarily because resort, restaurant and recreational area businessmen came to realize that they were in effect destroying the beauty that they were selling. This point of view also is being raised in the Door County area, plagued by ugly billboards and probably having little to do with eventual sales. In popular resort areas, tourists make reservations in advance, at least for lodging. Too many billboards, like too many blacktop and super highways, is self defeating for those who make their living from tourists.

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for June 18, 1870.

Last week, the Grand Master of the International Order of Odd Fellows (I.O.O.F.) re-instituted Janesville City No. 90 at the flourishing City of Janesville.

The week before he instituted Hahnemann No. 180 at the thriving Village of Fort Atkinson. The latter is a German Lodge.

The Grand Master expects ere long to institute German Lodges at Jefferson and Calumet, and American Lodges at Menasha and Fort Howard.

If the District Deputies and Lodges will make but a little effort, the Benevolent Order which has expended directly from its funds over a million dollars within the United States for the relief of distress during the past year, besides the private charities of its individual members, can be extended into every town in our noble State. TROUBLE ON CYPRUS

Cyprus Heats Up Again as Greek Militants Renew Cry of 'Enosis'

Once again, the cry of "enosis" is ringing on the craggy Mediterranean island of Cyprus. Enosis means union of the island to Greece; for Cypriot President Makarois it means trouble.

Cyprus is an island about 140 miles by 60 miles located in the eastern part of the Mediterranean. It is 40 miles south of Turkey and 60 miles west of Syria.

The population of some 600,000 is about 80 per cent Greek and 20 per cent Turkish.

Because of its position in relation to the Middle East, Cyprus represented an important stepping stone in medieval religious crusades and trading.

British Took Over

The island's modern history reaches back to the late 16th century when the Ottoman Turks expelled the Venetians, who had gained power through a long series of military ventures and political maneuvers. The Turks ruled the island for more than 300 years, until 1878, when Great Britain took over and occupied it by agreement with the Turks.

Although Cyprus remained under Turkish sovereignty, the British controlled its administration in exchange for assuring British help in the event the Russians attacked Turkey's eastern provinces.

From the start of British administration the Greek population of the island, left from the days of Greek influence during the fifth century, began to demand enosis. For many years, the request was of little more than academic interest.

But in 1914, war broke out between Britain and Turkey, and the British annexed Cyprus. A year later, they offered the island to the Greeks, if the Greeks would help Serbia, which was being invaded at the time by Bulgaria. Greece refused to help Serbia, and the offer lapsed.

Between the two world wars, agitation for enosis among the island's Greek population increased, and in 1931 the British abolished the island's legislature and vested power in the governor alone.

Makarios Becomes Leader

After World War II, Orthodox Archbishop Makarios emerged as the leader of the movement for independence. The camapign for union with Greece became more violent, and British, Greek and Turkish foreign ministers could not reach a solution to the problem of widespread terrorism.

The terrorist campaign against British installations and military personnel was kept up by a former Greek army officer, Col. Georgios Grivas. In 1955, emergency regulations were introduced, British reinforcements were sent to the island, and negotiations were begun with Makarios.

Although the British were willing to grant a measure of self-government, Makarios demanded independence. The negotiations broke down and Makarios was deported to the Seychelles. For the next year, terrorism continued unabated, and finally cooled off for a time when the British agreed to allow Makarios to go anywhere besides Cyprus.

The Turkish population was growing increasingly restive over the growing possibility of enosis, and the Turks proposed that Cyprus be partitioned.

The arguments for partition on the one hand and enosis on the other were settled after Makarios proposed self-government for a time, which was to be followed by independence.

The Greek demands for enosis continued, however, and Grivas returned to the island, this time as a general in the Greek army, to announce that he favored enosis. At first, he said he was expressing a private opinion, but he later was put in charge of Greek Cypriot security forces on the island.

All Have Military Forces

Under an agreement between Turkey and Greece in 1959 (Britain later accepted the terms of the agreement) military presence of all three countries was maintained on the island, despite its new independence.

In the mid '60s, Turkey and Greece came close to war over the island.

Last March, an attempt was made to assassinate President Makarios. Those charged with the assassination attempt were said to be members of the National Front, an organization supporting enosis which has claimed responsibility for many terrorist incidents.

Recently, about 70 men broke into a police station in the southern part of the island and stole a large supply of arms and ammunition. Makarios, angered at the raid, dismissed a number of police officers for dereliction of duty.

The president has said the March assassination attempt was not an isolated incident, and recent activities of the National Front suggest he may be right.

The recent skirmishing so far has pitted Greek Cypriots against Greek Cypriots. What will happen if Turkish Cypriots should get involved in the violence is anybody's guess. But no one expects enosis to get close to reality without the Turks raising their voices in protest.

This Mediterranean island has often been the scene of bloody battling between its Greek inhabitants, many of whom favor union with Greece, and its Turkish minority, which favors dividing the island in two. But trouble lately has been confined to the Greeks. The Terrorist National Front has renewed its demand for "enosis" or union with Greece. But the government of President Makarios is dedicated to independence. So far, the Turks are not involved in the latest round of trouble.

Picture of Veterans Is Praised

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I am an everyday housewife who was just cleaning house and was about to throw out some newspapers when I came upon the photo on the front page of last Sunday's paper (May 31). It portrays three World War I Veterans paused in tribute and I just had to stop everything and sit down and commend photographer Robert V. Baeten and your paper for publishing it. This photo shows such depth and meaning in an age of dissent. We get so tired of pictures of long-haired hippies causing trouble that this picture is like a rose among thorns. I hope the photographer will enter it in a contest of some kind. I have cut the picture out and will treasure it always.

Wisconsin Report

Democrats Conceded Chance in November Against GOP Slate

By JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — One of the most thoughtful Democratic politicians this state has produced used to caution his friends at this time of the year, when the faithful tended to make boasts about the favorable outlook for themselves in the distant fall elections.

Wyngaard

"This is basically a Republican state," he would warn.

And he would recite the results of the important elections, such as the contests for the governorship, during his own lifetime.

If that man had chosen to attend the Democratic state convention at Green Bay this weekend, he would repeat the admonition again and again. For there is an obvious spirit of hope among the party faithful the year in and year out Democrats, the men and women who compose what in other states would be called the "machine."

On the face of it, they have some reason to be hopeful. The Republican state ticket will be led by an untested nominee. The current Republican administration has had a less than harmonious record.

Senate Race Leads

The Republican candidate for U. S. senator is a fledgling who will be pitted against one of the most resourceful campaigners this state has seen. The senatorial line on the ballot is last, but the office has great attention-commanding power and is therefore of considerable importance in the support, or lack thereof, it can deliver for the rest of the nominees.

Democrats will exploit as their greatest single issue the Indochina war, although the impact of that issue may be lessened if the Nixon administration before fall makes some convincing progress toward ending it — as the Republican candidates devoutly hope.

If the assumption that Patrick J. Lucey is the favorite over Donald Peterson for the gubernatorial nomination is correct, the Democrats will have a hard-punching leader, a man with a wealth of campaign experience, and an expert in tactics determined to exert his last ounce of strength. At 53, Lucey cannot hope for another chance — under the new four-year term rule and the tradition that a governor usually gets two terms.

If State Sen. Martin Schreiber of Milwaukee becomes the nominee for lieutenant governor — which appears to be a reasonable probability — he may be able to cancel the Republican vote gains in that vital metropolitan center that Warren Knowles achieved earlier.

There are some disaffected voters because of the tax and spending record in Madison, although that is a doubtful factor if it is assumed that voters are aware that the Democrats will not be able to change the direction of state tax policy, and surely won't be disposed to cut spending.

Special Circumstances

Yet there were other years in which the Democrats were hopeful, but were outrun by the Republican foe. The most significant victories of the party in the last two decades were under unusual circumstances. Democrats tend to vote more regularly than Republicans, as shown by the break-through victories of Sen. William Proxmire in 1957, former Rep. Lester Johnson at about the same time, and most recently Rep. David Ovey of Wausau — all of them in special elections. Proxmire has been re-elected twice with comparative ease, but it is an axiom of politics that a member of Congress who uses the perquisites so generously provided for him and is reasonably diligent about fence-mending is a hard man to beat. Proxmire is nothing, if not diligent in that regard.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson's first victory for governor was as much the result of the ineffectual effort of his Republican rival as of his own campaign efforts. His first election to the Senate was against an octogenarian who had lost great hunks of support within his own party.

Republicans will again have the acknowledged although not easily measurable advantage of a powerful conglomeration of courthouse incumbents. They have mostly safe congressional seats. Perhaps the greatest immediate advantage is that they have fielded an uncontested slate, while Democrats must anticipate the dissipation of much of their energies and financial resources in distracting primary contests for several major state ticket offices before they can concentrate on the championship game in November.

Medicare Cuts Hurt Patients in Homes

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

As a taxpayer and citizen I can't help wondering what's going to happen when I get old. At present, I am 20 years old and work in a skilled nursing home in the administrative office. Last week we received a notice that the House of Representatives voted H.R. 17550 to cut back 9-10 million dollars from Title 19, Medicaid, or more commonly called Medical Assistance, in Wisconsin.

When I first started my employment I didn't really know what Medicare or Medicaid was. In 2½ years there have been many drastic changes in both programs. Where is it all to end?

When I first started everyone coming from a hospital to a nursing home was covered if they had a Medicare card. Then it went to an evaluation system to determine whether or not the person needed 24 hour nursing care. At present about the only way a person would be covered in a nursing home would be to have oxygen around the clock, hypodermic needles in both arms, and one leg broke, the other needing hot compresses by an R.N. each hour. The legislation wanted a cut in the Medicare program.

Now the House comes along and wants to allow people 90 days of patient care. Some of these people between the ages of 60 and 90 will never change their need for skilled care.

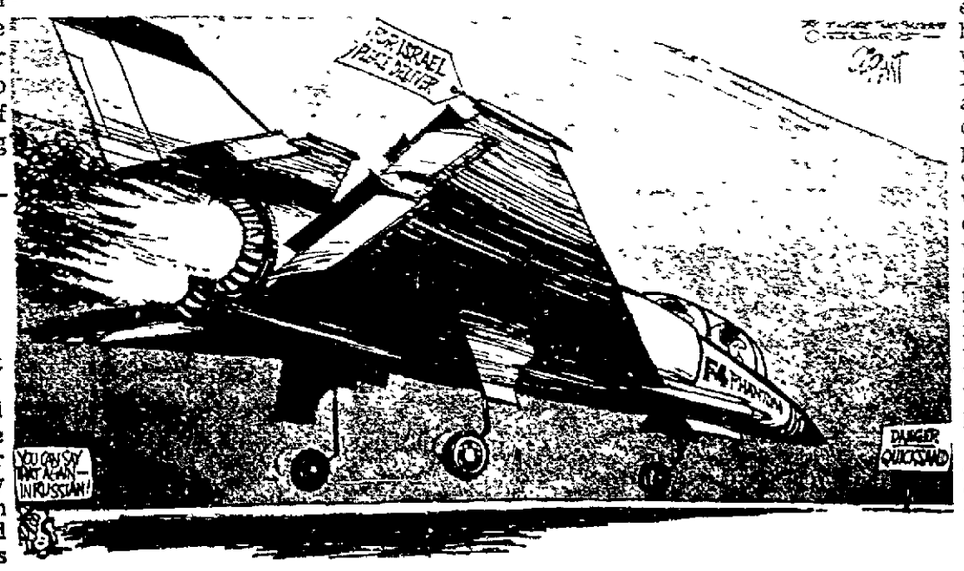

The cost of living today has never been any higher. People don't just come to a nursing home for a vacation. They come to a nursing home because they need care. We have some people who pay their own way as long as they can. People today work hard for the money they earn; but, what about forty years ago? Didn't people work as hard or harder for a considerable amount less? The money that they've worked so hard for, for years, is being spent for their old age. When that money is gone, how can anyone possibly just say "that's too bad."

The Indians when they grew old used to take a blanket and go "to the happy hunting ground." The Eskimos sat on a block of ice and drifted off to sea.

This sounds like a far off ancient way of life — not like the age of aquarius, 1970. If the legislation cuts back 9-10 million dollars today what happens in 10 or 20 years to old people?

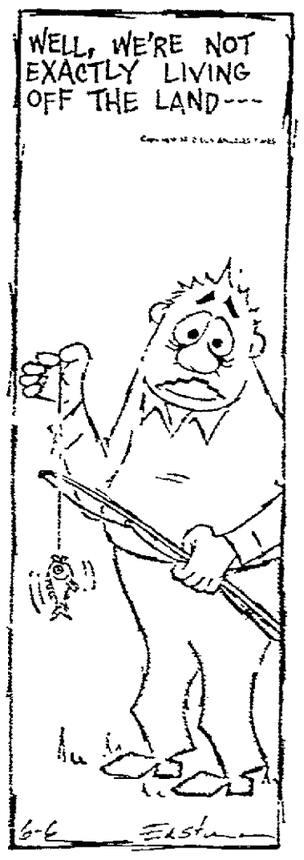

Are people today aware of the need for nursing homes? Do you ever think of what will happen if you should get sick and need skilled nursing care? If the people today don't write to their congressmen and Senators to appeal this bill, I guess winter will be coming up soon, and there's always a block of ice. . .

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X N Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Pencil Replaces Ruler For High Speed Ruling

BY CAPPY DICK

If a boy or girl finds it necessary to draw a series of parallel lines in a notebook, and a ruler is not at hand, the task can be performed very quickly with two pencils, one of them round.

Parallel Lines

The round pencil is to be used as a ruler. Place it flat on the paper which is to be ruled, lining it up properly. Hold it there with one hand.

With a pencil in the other hand, draw a line along the round pencil as you would do if it were a ruler.

Without lifting the round pencil from the paper, roll it downward a suitable distance and draw another line. Roll it down again and again draw a line. This can be continued until the entire area has been ruled.

With a little practice, the control of the round pencil will become so good that the parallel lines will be accurately spaced. Speed can be attained, too, with practice.

Decorative cross-hatching can be done with the pencils as suggested in the drawing above. After drawing parallel lines in one direction, turn the paper and draw parallel lines across them.

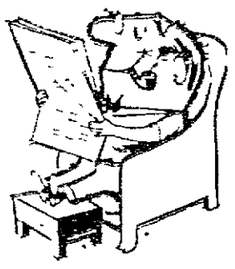

Monday: Lots more good fun for every boy and girl!

Antiwar Group

Two Officers Removed From Sensitive Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the first known antiwar organization operating at the officer level have been removed from their sensitive intelligence jobs in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

The Pentagon confirmed Friday that Lts. Gordon Kerr and James Pahura were relieved of their jobs as intelligence briefing officers "because of their association with the COM (Concerned Officers Movement)."

A Pentagon spokesman said the two would be serving as intelligence analysts.

Kerr and Pahura, both junior grade lieutenants, said they were told of their reassignments Toursday. The Navy did not tell them of their new jobs until the Pentagon confirmed the action Friday night, they said.

Young Officers

The two officers were the first members of COM to have any action taken against them as a result of their association with the small organization. It is made up of about 25 Washington based officers, ranging in age from 23 to 30. Most of the members are Navy men.

Kerr, a native of Alexandria, Va., and Pahura, of Medina, N.Y., said in a joint statement they were "disappointed that the Navy found it necessary to remove us from our jobs because of our efforts to seek channels for expressing responsible dissent."

Another member of the group said earlier in the week that COM's chief means of spreading its ideas is through a newsletter sent to friends and some peace groups.

Used Newsletter

Lt. (j.g.) Phil Lehman said the newsletter was operated in conformity with regulations, utilizing neither government time nor government materials in its publication.

In addition to registering opposition to administration policies in Indochina, COM has sought to express concern over military justice and what Lehman had called the "quality of military life."

Kerr and Pahura said the apparent restraint with which the Navy moved in their case "may indicate the Navy's growing awareness that such efforts can be constructive contributions to improving the quality of military life."

Voting Rights Bill Backers Eye Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, a law that dramatically shifted political power in parts of the South, plan to converge on Capitol Hill Monday in a last-ditch effort to keep the law alive.

The Leadership Conference on Civil Rights hopes 300 or more officers and members will buttonhole reluctant congressmen Monday and urge them to approve the five-year extension passed by the Senate last March. The conference is comprised of 125 civil rights groups, unions and religious organizations.

The law, termed by the conference "one of the most effective civil rights laws ever enacted," is scheduled to expire Aug. 6. Civil Rights leaders say more than 800,000 black voters have been put on the rolls throughout the South, resulting in 400 to 500 elected black officials in that part of the country.

"Consider what a blow to the civil rights movement it would be if the Voting Rights Act . . . were allowed to expire . . . ." said a letter sent to all conference members.

Marvin Caplin, director of the conference's Washington office, called the extension "the single most important piece of legislation on our agenda."

House members approved one version of an extension earlier this year. But the Senate then voted amendments to strengthen it, including a nationwide ban on literacy tests, and extension of the right to vote to 18-year-olds in federal elections.

Letters to Dying Son in Vietnam Never Delivered

VERMILION, Ohio (AP) — For more than three months while their son lay dying of wounds in hospitals in Vietnam and Japan, Dominic and Mary Kotora wrote letters faithfully.

This week, Kotora said he got the letters back—they had not been delivered.

Kotora said the package of 114 unopened letters—including some from other family members—was returned to him from the U.S. Army mail terminal in San Francisco. Kotora was told the Army was investigating to try to find out why the letters were not delivered.

Spec. 4 John Kotora, 21, was wounded Jan. 28 when the helicopter he was aboard was hit by enemy fire. He died May 3 of stomach wounds.

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Spec. 4 Michael D. Bohrman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Bohrman of Delafield, Wis., has been killed as a result of hostile action in Southeast Asia, the Defense Department said Friday.

No Sniper in Two Jackson State Deaths?

Local Committee Contradicts Report Made by Governor

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A member of a biracial committee that investigated the killing of two young Negroes by police during a disturbance at Jackson State College has challenged a report by the governor, saying the committee found no evidence of sniper fire.

Friday night's report on television was the first dealing with the findings of the local committee's probe of the shooting. It countered a televised report Thursday night by Gov. John Bell Williams that a state investigation found police fired in self-defense.

Reuben Anderson, a Jackson lawyer and one of two Negroes on the five-man committee, said: "The story about the snipers is really confusing to me."

"We investigated this thing for 10 days," he said, "and we never heard a story such as the one told by the governor about a man coming to a window that was already broken out and shooting out of this window. We heard no such testimony."

The shooting erupted shortly after midnight May 15 as some 70 officers — city police and state highway patrolmen — confronted a crowd of young Negroes in front of a Jackson State girls dormitory.

The officers fired 200 to 300 rounds from rifles and shotguns. A Jackson State student and a Jackson high school pupil were killed. Nine Negroes were wounded.

Williams said that his report was based on an impartial state investigation.

The governor said officers at the scene were in mortal danger from snipers and hurled bricks. Anderson said city police apparently felt no such fear, since they did not shoot.

Williams said officers confronted students at the dormitory while en route to a fire on the campus. Anderson said: "We didn't find this to be true. This fire was a bonfire in the middle of Lynch Street at Dalton, three blocks away from where these officers were, and they couldn't have possibly seen it."

Your Problems

This Wanderer Finds Home Best Place

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from the hippie signed "Ashamed to Go Back." I was in her shoes — if she had shoes, that is. I didn't.

When I split it was because home was a drag and my mind was really spaced from drugs. I thought San Francisco, L.A. and Mexico had a lot in store for me. Well, I was right. It had acid, pot, 13 people in a three-room apartment and V.D., and thrift stores where you could buy someone's beat-up jeans for $1.

I dug being "free." I thought loving and sharing was beautiful — until I woke up one morning in a Phoenix hospital. The speed I had shared with two other freaks had strychnine in it. You would have thought I learned my lesson but no, it happened again — an O.D. (overdose) of LSD. After that experience I knew the next time I'd kill myself so I decided to go home. I didn't have a cent so I thumbed my way from the West Coast to Ohio. When I got home I walked around the block four times before I could work up the courage to ring the bell.

My mom almost keeled over when she saw me. She threw her arms around my neck and cried. Dad didn't say much but I know he felt the same way. He went into the other room to shed his tears.

I hope every kid who reads this and is "Ashamed to Go Back" will take my word for it. Home is the best place to be and your folks will be happy to see you. I still haven't found myself but I'm alive and looking — and thankful for small favors.—Back from Hell

Dear Back: A good way to "find yourself" is to offer your services to your local drug treatment center and help rehabilitate others who are spaced out and have split.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been going with a man who is truly wonderful in a great many ways. When my husband passed away last year we started to keep company and Ben has made me smile again. He has one little fault that bothers me terribly.

The two of us often have dinner out — always in a very nice place. When the dinner check is presented he puts on his bifocals and adds it up two or three times, checking every item against the charge. He frequently questions the waiter, which I find embarrassing.

He asks why there was an extra charge for the dessert. (He was under the impression it came with the dinner.) If there is a charge for a second vegetable, he says he ordered it instead of the salad. When he finds an error in the bill he gloats. Usually it is just poor arithmetic, but he points out that the mistakes are invariably in the house's favor, which I cannot deny.

I wish he would just pay the bill when it is presented as my husband used to do. Should I tell him?—Riverside.

Dear Riv: No one should pay any kind of bill without looking at it and adding it up. Waiters make mistakes and so do machines because people operate them. You should not be embarrassed because your friend is cautious. It shows he has good sense.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Recently I hit upon a marvelous time saving idea when I was faced with the task of sewing weights on the hem of my new drapes.

I'm not too enthusiastic about sewing by hand and it is such a time consuming job. The task of removing the weights when the drapes need washing or cleaning and then having to resew them is also a pain in the neck!

So I snapped my weights on the grapes!

I had a kit for using grippers when making baby clothes and used this.

I purchased weights that had a small cloth attached to them. Then I put the gripper fasteners on the drapery hem and the other parts of the gripper to the cloth tab on the weights. It took me only fifteen minutes to attach 22 weights.

It's so easy to unsnap the weights for laundering or cleaning and has proven to be a real time saver.

Carol Capagna

Dear Heloise:

This is a warning that I would like to pass on to your readers. I'm sure many folks are aware of this, but even so, it will refresh their memory:

Never, never, place anything in the car's back window shelf. In case of an accident, the object becomes a flying missile and could cause severe injury to occupants of the car.

Nancy De Foor

Dear Heloise:

When I make my bed I put on my fitted sheet, put the pillowships on the pillows and place them on the bed

Then I put the top sheet on and the blanket or blankets over that and tuck them in real tight at the foot of the bed.

Instead of making the bed as usual, I turn the top sheet and the blankets just like you do when turning the bed back at night when you are ready to crawl in.

Then put on the spread and when nighttime comes, all you have to do is turn back your spread and the bed is all ready for you to hop into

Mrs. W. I. C.

I think you're swinging with that one. Wouldn't this be a great idea to use when making children's beds? It would be such a help in getting them tucked in at night ready for a visit from the sandman.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have found a real good way to thread a needle with cotton thread

I take a thin plastic strip that comes on several different brands of cigarettes and use that. It can be used over and over

I put one end of the strip through the eye of the needle and then the other end of the strip through the same eye of the needle on the other side, leaving a large loop in the plastic strip

Then I put the cotton thread through the loop and pull both ends of the plastic strip through the needle eye and the thread comes through the needle ready for sewing.

I can see the plastic strip easier than a threader.

Mrs. J. E. Magrogan

Dear Heloise:

One day, while bragging to my sister-in-law about many things I had found to remove garlic odors from the hands, she said, "Why not use deodorant spray?"

Heloise, I hate to admit it, but it does the job, fast, and oh, so easy.

Mrs. H. L.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

A mark of a good bidding partnership is usually to arrive at the proper contract. Experts, however, aren't satisfied with arriving at the proper contract; they want even more accuracy. They want to arrive at the proper contract played from the right side of the table!

This means that if four spades, played by South, is the best spot, they do not want to be in four spades played by North. How is all this possible? Simple. Watch The Aces bid and play the following four-spade contract from the "right side" of the table.

Both vulnerable
Dealer South

NORTH
♠ A J 10 9 8
♥ K 4
♦ J 9 8
♣ 6 5 4

WEST
♠ 7 6 5
♥ 9 8 7
♦ K 10 4 2
♣ A 3 2

EAST
♠ Q 3
♥ Q 6 5 3
♦ 7 5
♣ Q J 10 9 8

SOUTH
♠ K 4 2
♥ A 5 10 2
♦ A Q 6 3
♣ K 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of hearts.

What does it all mean? To begin with, The Aces are sold on Jacoby Transfer responses to no-trump opening bids. North's artificial response of two hearts promised at least five spades. If North wished to invite game in spades, he would raise to three. IF he wished to play game in spades, he would raise to four. In all cases, the no-trump bidder would become the declarer, and the opening lead would be coming into, rather than through, the strong hand.

In the actual hand, North, Robert Hamman, transferred to two spades and then raised to three no-trump. His bidding guaranteed a five-card spade suit with no-trump distribution. South, Jim Jacoby, now had to decide whether to play four spades or three no-trump. He actually had to consider his hand as a dummy for North's five-card suit. Holding a doubleton with three trump, he wisely decided to play four spades.

Notice that West is end-played on the opening lead. Any lead West makes helps South. Notice also that if North plays four spades, East can lead a club through the king, and the hand will probably be defeated, losing two clubs, a diamond and a spade.

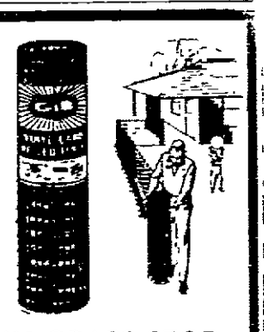

Playing from the South side is an entirely different matter. Jacoby won the jack of hearts in his hand at trick one. East correctly playing low, and entered dummy with the king of hearts to run the jack of spades through East. Jacoby did not want to take any finesses into East for fear of a possible club play through his king.

Having located her majesty, the trump queen, trumps were drawn, and the jack of diamonds passed to West, who was end-played again. Out of utter frustration, he cashed his ace of clubs before he lost it, "holding" Jacoby to one overtrick.

This is a much better result than going down one trick by playing the same contract from the wrong side.

Ramada Inn Heads Neenah Construction

Permits Issued for $2.9 Million in Buildings in Neenah

NEENAH — With the Ramada Inn as the major project for 1970, city building has surged ahead of the same five months of last year by more than $1 million

Through May of this year building totaled $2 9 million compared with $1 7 million at the same time a year ago The Ramada Inn building permit was for $1 2 million

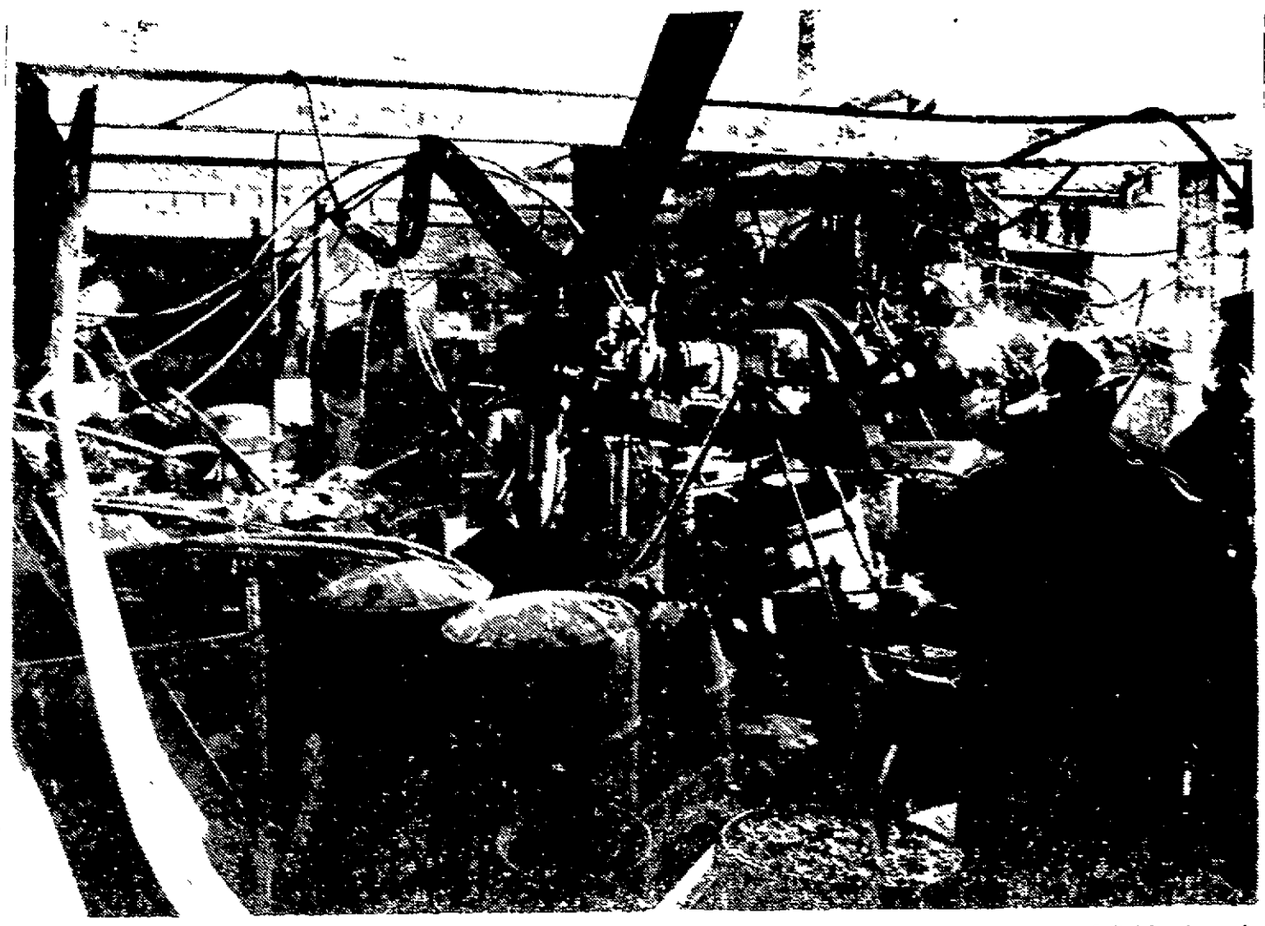

Residential building, however, has tapered off to about two-thirds of what it was last year. So far, there have been permits issued for 36 houses compared to 55 for the first five months of 1969.

Compared to 1968, home building is going about half the rate it was then when there were 70 home building permits issued through May

The influx of the federally-subsidized homes is showing up on the value of the permits issued. In 1969, the 55 permits were for $968,800 for an average value of about $17,600 This year, the 36 permits totaled $496,500 for an average of $13,800.

May, was by far the biggest month of 1970 with $2 2 million worth of building permits issued The total for the year is only $2 9 million

In addition to the Ramada Inn, permits were issued for nine homes, a duplex, 11 garages and a warehouse.

Fire Destroyed the A. P. Nonweiler Paint Company between Neenah and Oshkosh on County Trunk A Friday afternoon. The blaze started when a solvent pump was switched off, igniting flammable materials inside the building. Firemen from the towns of Oshkosh and Vinland and the City of Oshkosh were called in to battle the blaze. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Fire Destroys Paint Factory Near Oshkosh

OSHKOSH—A volunteer fireman and a workman at the A.P. Nonweiler Company were injured slightly Friday afternoon when fire erupted at the paint factory 3321 North Shore Drive on Highway A

The blaze occurred at approximately 3 15 p.m., according to Town of Oshkosh Fire Chief Floyd Grundy, when a solvent pump was switched off, igniting flamable material inside the building

Vice president of the Lakeside Plastics Corp . Donald Seibold, notified the fire department when he witnessed the explosion. Reportedly several hundred 55-gallon drums of flammable liquids were stored in the Nonweiler plant at the time.

Company President Dick Nonweiler could give no estimate of the damage today but said that "It was pretty close to a total loss." Destroyed in the blaze were equipment, the inventory and the plant itself

Crews at Night

"Fortunately," said Nonweiler, "The plastic company (a subsidiary of the paint plant) is similarly equipped and as a result paint crews will be used at night He said the paint firm will be "back to 90 per cent of its work capacity."

"It will be a month or two before we are back on our regular schedule," said Nonweiler.

Six 5,000-gallon tanks of paint thinner at the back of the burning building did not explode. Grundy reported that the fire departments "kept them cool with water so they wouldn't blow."

Commends Firemen

Nonweiler credited the fire's containment to the distance of the buildings, the quick action of the fire department and the direction of the wind.

"The plastic company is separated from the other building by 130 feet and the fire department did a commendable job."

Fire units from the Town of Oshkosh, the City of Oshkosh and the Town of Vinland battled the blaze until 10 p m Over 43 firemen were on duty at the blaze.

Harry Wojahn an employe of the firm "suffered superficial burns to one leg and hand" as he tried to extinguish the fire before it could spread. He was treated at Mercy Medical Center and released Town of Vinland volunteer fireman, Dale Wilde, received a cut to the head when he bumped into a ladder

Meet State Rules, Dump Owners Told

OSHKOSH — A State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) notice last week to operators of the Miles Kimball reclamation project specified six requirements to bring the landfill dump to compliance with state solid waste disposal standards.

A letter to Al Giuliani, project manager, said that open burning must be restricted and called for adequate diking and diversion of surface runoff.

Allan F. Schoen, DNR district engineer, said he had investigated the site, off State 110 adjacent to Lake Butte des Morts, May 26 and concluded that the project is in violation of the state administrative code.

Schoen said he would recommend a conditional license when the manager provides two copies of a license application for solid waste disposal operations, two copies of the description of the landfill operation, a copy of a $1,000 surety bond, a copy of a permit to operate from the City of Oshkosh, and the $100 license fee to DNR for the 1969 and 1970 licensing periods.

Schoen said that to comply with the state's standards, in effect since March 12, 1969, the operator must discontinue open burning except when it is conducted under supervision with the permission of the local fire prevention agency and then only when it can be done in a nuisance-free manner and without conflict with local or state air pollution control requirements.

Diking Required

Further, there must be adequate diking around the exterior of the disposal operation to prevent leaching to surface waters;

Surface run-off must be diverted around or through the disposal site:

Dumping of solid waste must be confined to as small an area as practical:

Areas of the site that are at finished grade must be abandoned as provided by the state standard: and

The license number must be posted at the site entrance when it is obtained.

City officials said last week that a nearby Riverside Cemetery dump has been discontinued as a part of an effort to abate pollution of the adjacent waterway Both sites drain from old log storage ponds to the waterway.

He found it contained 50 pounds of dynamite.

He called police, and they traced the explosives to W. R. Puddicombe, Rockford, Ill., a blasting contractor for Badger Highways Co.

Puddicombe said he had just come from Beloit with a load of explosives, and did not know he had lost the 50-pound package along Ninth Street.

He was warned to load his truck more carefully in the future.

Police said a neighbor spotted a suspicious looking car and started following it. She said she saw the youths looking in the windows at Bradke's Restaurant, 1022 Main St., and she called police.

When police arrived, the two juveniles were in the car along with 520 cases of beer while Ebben was inside the restaurant.

All are being charged with burglary and the mother of the 14-year-old is also being charged with a second curfew violation, according to police.

Facing Major Problems

Outagamie Wants Reactivation of Urban Study Unit

Reactivation of the urban counties committee of the Wisconsin County Boards Association will be sought by Outagamie County to take up major problems facing the more populous counties in the state.

Among the questions the county would like considered are those of the public defender, county assessor and county institutions administration.

The urban counties committee was created at last year's boards association convention at the request of association President Myron Lotto of Brown County and included the county board chairmen of the 10 largest counties. Its purpose was to take up problems of special interest to those counties.

Only one meeting, however, was ever conducted, on the county executive issue, and none has been held since November.

'More Weight'

County Administrator Alvin Woehler told the board's rules and legislative committee Friday that action through this urban counties committee would carry more weight than attempting to gain legislation alone.

The public defender issue has been before the board's law enforcement committee owing to the rising cost of court appointed attorneys for indigent defendants.

State law presently is unclear as to whether a county may create the position. Corporation Counsel Frank Templeton said Racine County has created the post but has not filled it.

Woehler also asked for a complete study of the county assessor situation. "This is extremely important since it represents the basis for the local tax structure," he said.

One Board Eyed

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt also suggested a study toward seeking legislation to permit a single board to govern all county institutions. State law now required separate boards for each facility.

This legislation had been recommended in the Blue Ribbon committee report 30 months ago for consolidation of county institutional facilities.

DeLaHunt asked the county to seek a formal attorney general's opinion to clarify the appointive power of the county administrator and county executive as it concerns county institution trustees.

Doves Active at State Convention

Democrat Resolution Asks Withdrawal Now

Post-Crescent Staff Writers

GREEN BAY — The South Vietnamese government and Asian war came under heavier attack than the Republican administration of Richard Nixon as the annual state convention of the Wisconsin Democratic party began Friday at the Brown County Arena.

In what will almost surely be the major topic of the convention, a platform sub-committee recommended to the delegates a resolution condemning American participation in the war and calling for immediate withdrawal of American forces in Southeast Asia, asked for admission of Red China to the United Nations, proposed an international court to judge American actions, and generally suggested the ultra dove position on war and armament.

About 800 delegates were on hand at the first general session of the convention at the Brown County Arena last night.

About 1,800 delegates are eligible to attend.

More Expected

Attendance was expected to swell today, when the convention is scheduled to act on a long list of platform suggestions and resolutions screened by subcommittees Friday.

With a general conviction among delegates that the party's prospects for victory in the state elections in the fall probably are more hopeful than in half a dozen years, the subcommittees examined platform proposals with unusual care.

Major propositions emerging from the sub-committees last night included:

—An unexpected refusal by a committee on taxation and finance to propose repeal of the "Republican" four per cent general sales tax, in the event Democrats win control of the statehouse in November.

Verbosity Refined

—A refinement by another sub-committee of three verbose proposals on law, order and justice that emerged as a single sentence recommendation that the party "recognize and support the right of all students and Americans citizens to dissent and protest (but we nonetheless oppose the use of force, violence and destruction" in the name of dissent.

—A bid for the youth vote by another sub-committee in the form of a proposed plank asking for more student and faculty involvement in the administration of educational institutions and educational processes.

—A skittish proposal by the same sub-committee that the party set up a special commission to examine the recommendations of the Republican-originated Kellett task force report on education which has aroused stiff resistance within the educational establishment of the state.

The Democrats who worked on the law and order proposals for the campaign platform blamed Republican law enforcement officers for failing, as they put it, to enforce existing laws and controls on demonstrations.

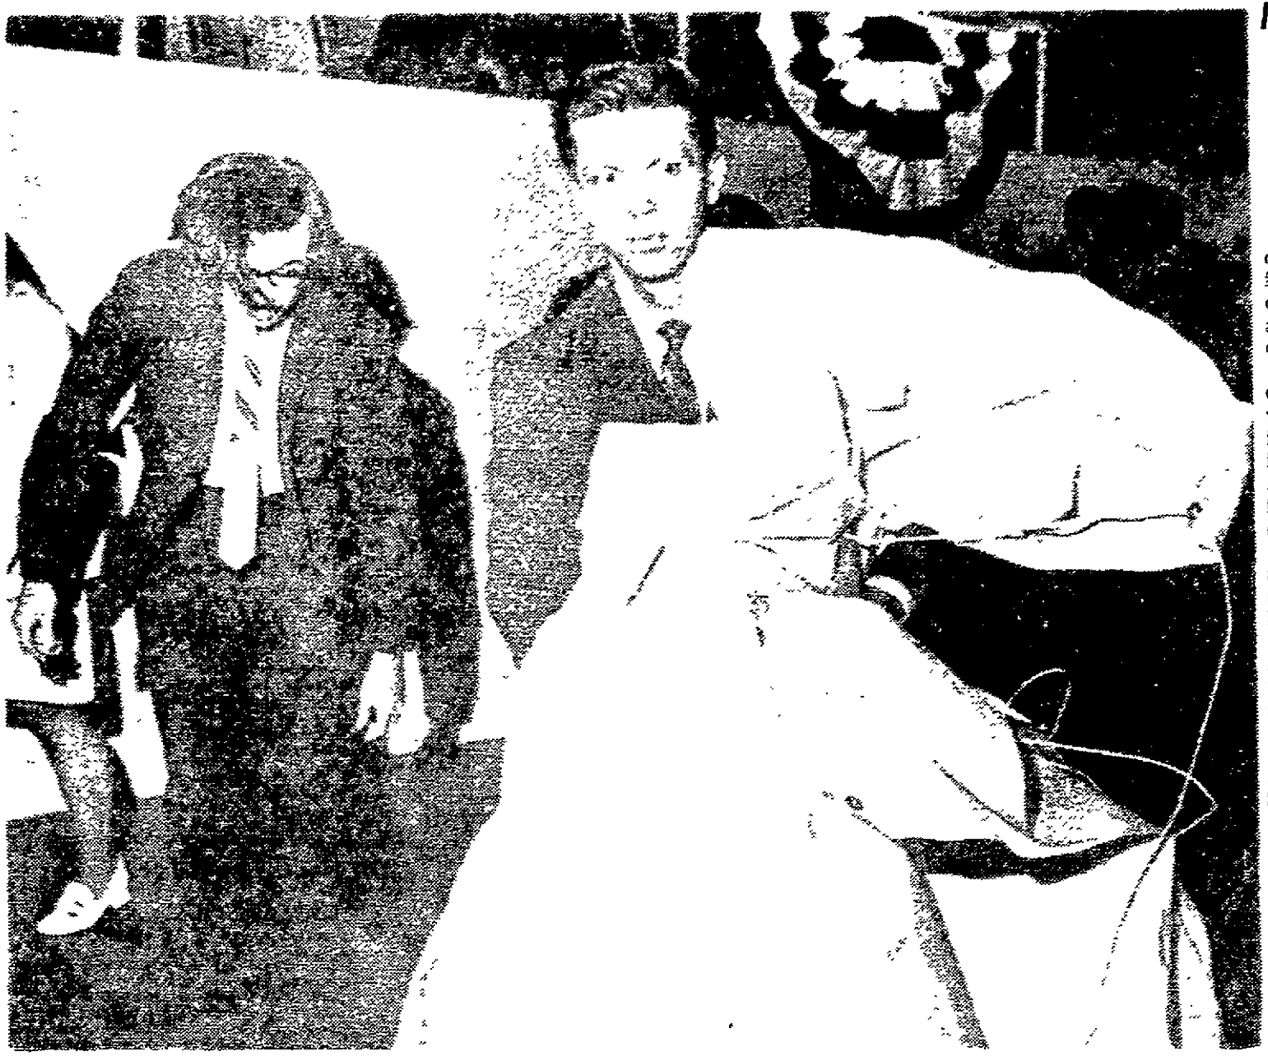

They carefully added a statement that non-protesting students must be assured the right to attend classes at their schools.

The taxation sub-committee, which included three members of the legislature, had been handed a proposal by a platform planning committee which included a pledge to avoid a tax increase if the party is given power in Madison.

But State Sen. Carl Thompson of Dale County, a legislative

Interrupts Speakers

Candidate for House Ejected From Session

GREEN BAY (AP)—A candidate for Congress was ejected from the floor of the state Democratic convention Friday night after refusing a chairman's order to keep still.

Don Lass of West Allis, a candidate for the seat held by Milwaukee Rep. Clement Zablocki, fell to his hands and knees in front of the Brown County Arena during a scuffle with officials who escorted him to the door.

"I'm a candidate for Congress and I've got a right to be in there," Lass protested as he was hustled out of the arena.

"I'm a delegate, and I have a right to speak," he argued. "We've got an armed camp around here."

Sheriff Norb Froehlich helped sergeants at arms remove Lass after the convention chairman, State Sen. Fred Risser ordered patrols to clear aisles, specifically of Lass.

Risser received a round of applause from delegates when he rapped his gavel in hope of silencing Lass, who has repeatedly shouted: "Mr. chairman, point of order."

Lass went from one floor microphone to another, trying to get Risser's recognition.

He said: "They're trying to bury my resolutions," which included a censure of the war in Vietnam and a compliment for civil rights leader James E. Groppi of Milwaukee.

Risser ignored the shouting as long as he could. Lass continued his appeals during the keynote address by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., who similarly tried to ignore the outbursts.

Officials alternately pleaded with Lass, and wrestled with him. They eventually took him by the arms and led him to the sidewalk.

"Will you please leave?" Froehlich pleaded, nudging Lass out a door. "I'm asking you a favor."

Two sheriff's cars, lights flashing, pulled up at the curb. Some of Lass' associates, one of them apparently a lawyer, helped escort the candidate across the street to a private car.

Lass was heard to say to his companion: "I demand that you sue the sheriff of Brown County."

Elderly Woman Bilked

Confidence Man Draws Probation

The last of three men charged with bilking $950 from an 86-year-old Appleton woman last June was placed on one year's probation Friday.

Bernie Paul Weaver, 24, Coal Valley, Ill., pleaded guilty to the charge in Circuit Court, changing an earlier innocent plea.

Circuit Judge Edmund Arpin told Weaver that he was "exercising leniency in the case . . . because your part was more by way of bad association (than anything else.) The court feels you have learned your lesson."

The case was transferred to Arpin after an affidavit of prejudice was filed against Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell.

Theft by Fraud

Three men, including Weaver, were named in the theft by fraud charge last June 28 by city detectives. The trio was apprehended in Wausau while attempting a confidence game there.

Appleton authorities issued a statewide alert for the trio after the June 26 incident in Appleton.

Detectives, in recalling the event, say that a man identifying himself as a bank official phoned the elderly woman on the morning of the 26th, and began inquiring about her bank accounts. The man explained that the bank was experiencing technical difficulties with a computer.

The caller then told her the only accurate way for the bank to check her account would be for her to withdraw all her savings and bring them home for presentation to a police officer.

Money Withdrawn

She went to the bank and withdrew the money. Early in the afternoon a man came to her home, flashed a badge and asked that she produce the money.

When she did, the man, later identified as Edwin E. Dorin, 29, Rock Island, Ill., took the money — nine $100 bills and a $50 bill—"analyzed" it, and put it into a yellow envelope which he sealed. He assured the woman the bank would now have an accurate record.

Instead of returning the envelope with the cash to her however, Doran produced an identically sealed envelope — containing small slips of pink paper cut to bill size.

When she returned to the bank to redeposit the cash, the woman discovered the scheme.

Doran was given three year's probation for his part in the crime. Francis W. Weaver, 29, Coal Valley, Bernie's brother, was sentenced to four years in prison. He had been on parole from a federal prison at the time of the crime.

Bernie Weaver was a "chauffeur" during the incident, according to police.

State to Study Nursing Homes For the Retarded

MILWAUKEE (AP)—State officials reported Friday they plan a thorough study of 122 private nursing homes in which mentally retarded persons have been placed.

Harvey A. Stevens, director of the State Bureau of Mental Retardation, told the United Association of Retarded Children and the Wisconsin Association for Retarded Children that the study is planned this summer.

Spokesmen for the association had expressed concern about published reports of diminishing levels of care for nursing home patients, despite the availability of increased government aid. Friday's meeting was the third since March.

Democrats Blast GOP Attitude

Obey Says Nation Must be United

GREEN BAY — Wisconsin Democrats Friday heard the attitude of some Nixon Administration spokesmen toward dissenters described as a "throwback to the divine right of kings."

Rep. David Obey of Wausau called for an "American strategy" to unite the country as he delivered the keynote address opening the three-day convention of the state party.

Some 3,000 Democrats were expected to attend the sessions in the Brown County arena to set policies and commune with party leaders and office-seekers in preparation for the fall election campaigns.

The 7th District congressman chided the Nixon Administration for lecturing rather than leading, and he held up the example of Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican President, for both parties to follow.

Obey charged that from the outset some members of the Nixon Administration have assumed "the infallibility of its judgment and the power of its reason—a sort of Washington throwback to the divine right of kings."

He said Lincoln's presidency showed the need to avoid "the mistake of deliberate insensitivity to another man's point of view, the mistake of confusing needless invective with leadership, and of morality with posturing."

Alluding to the reports of a Nixon "southern strategy," Obey said Lincoln also showed "that this nation does not need a northern strategy or a southern strategy or an eastern strategy or a western strategy, but rather an American strategy." He said the Democratic Party has followed such a policy and can do so again.

Dealing with dissent "is where a government's generousity of spirit is sorely tested," he continued, saying it is particularly a problem for a government which "equates silence with consent, if not with perfect patriotism."

Not Always Valid

Saying such an assumption is valid only when "public quietude actually stems from public confidence." Obey said it would not be made "by any government with a due sense of the fallibility of its judgment and the uncertainties of history."

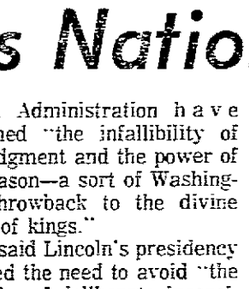

"Some members of this Administration," Obey accused, "have on occasion dismissed dissent, intimidated the press, ignored working people, paralyzed small business. That was not Lincoln's way, and it should not be either party's way today." He advised following the Civil War President's theme, "malice toward none and charity toward all."

He urged the party to be "fair enough to recognize wisdom and vision, no matter on which side of the political aisle it is found," and to worry about the country rather than the party's condition.

Scouter Turned Magician To Direct Summer Camp

A former professional Scouter and presently a professional magician will be the summer camp director for the Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, at Gardner Dam.

Richard Oslund, who directed camp in 1957, will help reorganize the structure of camp, putting the emphasis on the more self-help basis and re-stressing patrol operation.

Oslund

Oslund, a native of Escanaba, Mich., was a Scout field executive for nine years in Michigan and Indiana and directed summer camps.

In 1967 he left Scouting to go into entertainment, traveling throughout the county in the lyceum field. During summer, however, he returned to direct camps.

Oslund is a graduate of Jordan Seminary, Menominee, Mich., and Sacred Heart Seminary, Detroit.

His interest in magic goes back to grade school. Later he was associated with various professional magicians and after entering the entertainment field himself, appeared with Ed Sullivan and on other television shows.

The director, who was a Cub and Boy Scout himself and an Explorer, plans to emphasize do-it-yourself programs, putting them back into the hands of the boys, which, he says, was the purpose of organizing the Scout movement.

Two Youths Face Charges Of Robbery

Detectives Arrest Pair Accused of Beating Companion

Appleton detectives have arrested and charged with robbery two youths they believe beat and robbed a 19-year-old northside youth early Tuesday in the driveway of his home.

Mark R. Vandertie, 360 W. Packard St., and John E. Huff, 1625 N. Bennett St., both 19, were taken into custody by detectives about 1 p.m. Friday at their homes.

Police say the pair took $83 from Kenneth W. Tischer's billfold after they jumped him and beat him in the driveway of his home. Tischer, who lives at 2029 N. Appleton St., told police he had been out drinking with them prior to the attack. He sustained a cut lip in the fracas.

The two youths, both of whom graduated from Appleton High School-West Thursday night, made a brief appearance in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Friday afternoon.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued the case to Monday morning to give them time to consult an attorney. Huff and Vandertie are being held in the county jail under $1,500 bond.

FVL Graduates Urged To 'Serve the Lord'

Graduates of Fox Valley Lutheran (FVL) High School were commended with a prayer and urged to "serve the Lord" as they ended their high school careers Friday night.

"You have the same choice that Joshua and the people of Israel had," the Rev. Erwin Ploetz, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, Dale, told 106 seniors at commencement exercises.

"But just because you've decided it tonight, that doesn't mean you've got it made," he added.

Trials and temptations are to be expected, the Dale pastor warned, as he turned his back on the audience to face the graduates seated in a semi-circle behind him during his address.

"You can't pass the buck anymore and say, 'The school doesn't permit it,' " he noted. "No one can decide it but you—and if you can think you can do it alone, you're lost before you begin."

Answer in Holy Spirit

The answer lies in the presence of the Holy Spirit in the Christian's heart, Ploetz said. "He shall make it possible for you to confess, 'We shall serve the Lord.' "

Echoing the theme was Rochelle Greve, Appleton, one of two student speakers.

There has been a "powerful influence motivating us, the power of Christ," she said. "All that we are must be credited to Christ himself."

Life ahead is uncertain, but "He who sustained me in the past will not desert me in the future," she noted, citing the words of the Apostle Paul, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me."

Life ahead is uncertain, but "He who sustained me in the past will not desert me in the future," she noted, citing the words of the Apostle Paul, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me."

Classmate Richard Kanzenbach, New London, discussed the reasons for the existence of a parochial high school like FVL.

Parents Remember Ephesians

He said that parents send their children to the school because they remember Ephesians 6:4, which urges parents to rear their children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

"We have been educated in accordance with God's word," he said, adding that it was necessary to approach scripture as the "newborn babes desiring the sincere milk of the word" referred to in I Peter 2:2.

"I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever" from Psalm 23 is the class motto, the speaker noted.

"These words in themselves aptly express, 'Why FVL?' " he said.

The Rev. Harold Warnke, Principal, called on the graduates to go out and "conquer new worlds with the help of the Lord" in remarks before the presentation of diplomas.

"The faculty has mixed emotions" at graduation, he said. "We have put some of our lives into you people."

But the former teachers of the new graduates rejoice at such a time, he added. "We've sown the seed and done some watering. May the Lord give the increase."

Budget Goes to Regents Today

Record $135.1 Million Sought For State University System

MADISON (AP) — A record $135.1 million budget for operating the State University System in 1970-71 was sent to the Board of Regents for final approval today.

The budget, up 10 per cent over the 1969-70 level, calls for an average six per cent faculty pay boost.

State tax funds in the budget total $82 million, up $8.3 million from the present year.

Student fees would account for a portion of the total. Tuition increases already approved would include $28 per year for resident undergraduates, $26 for graduate students and $62 for non-resident graduate students.

New annual budget figures for the schools starting July 1, compared with the current year ending June 30 include:

Eau Claire, $15,651,686—$14,-372,017; La Crosse, $12,669,491—$11,658,560; Oshkosh, $20,779,705—$19,097,006; Oshkosh-Fond du Lac faculty, $863,295—$582,995; Platteville, $11,020,188—$10,786,-895; Richland campus, $670,143—$590,384; River Falls, $9,045,-717—$8,465,253; Stevens Point $16,650,520—$13,702,442; Medford campus, $293,486 — $221,502; Stout, $12,682,787 — $10,599,604; Barron campus, $838,609—$684,-865; Superior, $7,375,768—$6,853,-972; Whitewater, $17,552,398—$16,566,323.

Tuition levels will be $320 for resident undergraduates, $1,250 for out-of-state undergraduates, $378 for resident graduate students, and $1,550 for non-resident graduate students.

System director Eugene McPhee, in his report to the regents budget committee, noted the legislature had cut support for supplies and capital from $131 per student to $127 per student.

"If inflationary increases are also included, the reduction would be approximately 15 per cent for the biennium," McPhee said.

The legislature also provided staff and funds to operate new buildings but "at a reduced level," McPhee said. The legislature also reduced the teacher improvement program from $927,000 to $463,800 for the upcoming year, he added.

Other budget highlights included an additional $130,000 for building security protection.

Outruns Star-Studded Pack

McCluskey King of KK '200'

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

KAUKAUNA — Roger McCluskey demonstrated Friday night why he is current king of the nation's stock car drivers, as he thoroughly dominated the third 100-mile USAC race in the KK Sports Arena's history.

The 39-year-old Tucson, Ariz. driver expertly wheeled his slightly-battered but powerfully accelerating 1970 Plymouth Road Runner to victory in the track record time of 1 hour, 18 minutes, 36 seconds. McCluskey's Road Runner didn't make with the "beep, beep," which characterizes its movie-TV namesake but proved just as hard to catch as the cartoon character.

McCluskey, who lapped everyone in the field but runnerup Jack Bowsher (and came within 100 yards of lapping Bowsher), led for 180 laps. The only time he relinquished the lead after coming from his back-row start to take command was after he made his only pit stop on the 118th lap.

For several moments, it appeared that McCluskey's victory bid wouldn't get off the ground. His machine was involved in a multi-car pileup at the beginning of the second lap of the feature race's original start. The only car actually put out of the race by the mishap proved to be the new green Dodge Super Bee driven by Menasha's George Giesen.

Right Side Dented

The right side of McCluskey's car was badly dented, but the engine was unaffected. A restart was called for, and McCluskey never slowed his relentless pace again except for a brief pit stop.

"I was pretty confident I could win," said McCluskey as he enjoyed a piece of watermelon in "victory lane." He indicated that despite the accident (a car spun out on the curve to start it) "my car ran well and handled real well."

McCluskey whose car is numbered "1" in recognition of his having won the 1969 national stock title, added 200 points to his current USAC lead. (He went into action with a total of 1,418 points). The Indianapolis 500 veteran, who didn't begin stock car racing until 1968, picked up his second victory of 1970 (he also has four seconds) and the 11th feature triumph of his stock career.

Bowsher, a member of the A J Foyt racing team, took the runnerup spot for the second straight time at KK.

White Third

Don White, the all-time stock car leader who won last September's KK 100 miler, finished third last night in a 1969 Dodge Charger.

A crowd of nearly 10,000 saw two other Indianapolis drivers, in addition to McCluskey, compete on a perfect night for racing. Art Pollard finished sixth, while Johnny Rutherford came in 13th. Rutherford was making his first stock car start since 1966.

Appleton's Roger Regeth finished 20th.

Wisconsin Rapids' Dick Trickle, who recently edged McCluskey in an Ohio race, had no chance to make a run for the top part of the $12,000 purse. He blew his engine during a practice run, even before the time trials started.

McCluskey and White tied for the fastest lap times in the trials—22.22. In the 4-lap trophy dash for the four fastest qualifiers, White won by a whisker over Bowsher, with McCluskey third.

White came right back to win the first 10-lap preliminary. The Keokuk, Iowa, driver took the lead from Pollard on the seventh lap and won going away. Pollard was second, with Gerkin third.

McCluskey made a runaway of the second 10-lapper. Bowsher took second, and Marmar was third.

Bill Nelson, of Minneapolis, won the 25-lap semi-feature, or consolation race. Wally Christensen was second and Dave Sorg third.

After the re-start of the feature event, Fort Wayne's Sorg, who started in the front row, held the lead for the first eight laps, before Pollard took over. McCluskey became frontrunner briefly, then Pollard passed him on the 11th lap. Pollard held on for two more laps, before the first of the race's only two caution flags went out. After three minutes, it was full throttle again, and McCluskey took the lead in the home stretch of the 17th lap.

Next 100 Laps

McCluskey was destined to monopolize first place for the next 100 laps until he pitted. White move into the runnerup slot and stayed there until the 59th lap. Bowsher moved past White and kept the No. 2 spot practically all of the remainder of the race.

White regained second place for three laps, at the 131st reclaimed it and held it.

By the 50th lap, the charging McCluskey had widened his lead over runnerup White to one-quarter lap. At the half-way mark of the race, McCluskey led runnerup Bowsher by more than one-half lap.

Bruce Sparrmen briefly took the lead at the time of McCluskey's pit stop, but he bowed to McCluskey's pressure and eventually finished fifth.

It was about 3 minutes after midnight when McCluskey's white car (with yellow wheels and blue and red trim) took the checkered flag.

Host Nicolet, with its two singles players and doubles team still in competition, has wrapped up its fourth straight state crown with 25 points.

Manitowoc was runnerup with 15 points while Appleton West had 9 and Neenah 8. Kaukauna finished with three and Menasha failed to score.

Whitlinger lost only two games in defeating Steve Shapiro, Madison West, 6-0, 6-0, Jim Messinger, Brookfield Central, 6-0, 6-1, and Paul Christopher, Eau Claire Memorial, 6-1, 6-0.

The Neenah sophomore is unbeaten in 51 high school matches in two seasons.

No points were awarded in consolation play toward the team totals.

Anthony Wins Heidelberg Open

SEATTLE (AP) — Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., came within two pins Friday of equaling the world's professional record for 12 games as he competed in the Professional Bowlers Association's $32,500 Heidelberg Open.

The crew-cut southpaw knocked down 2,981 pins, averaging 248 pins for the day's two six-game blocks. The record of 2,983 was set by Gene Rhoda, Valparaiso, Ind., in 1964.

Don White, All-Time national stock car racing leader, is shown preparing for Friday night's 100-mile race at the KK Sports Arena. He finished third.

Angels Win in 10th

Foxes Rally Falls Short, 3-2

DAVENPORT, IOWA — The Appleton Foxes rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to tie Quad Cities, but lost the game on a tenth inning throwing error, 3-2.

Nate Pettaway led off the ninth for the Foxes and got to first when the third strike got away from the Angels' catcher Roger Reid followed with a walk, Ron Davini batted for relief pitcher Cleo Jackson and sacrificed the runners to second and third. Gary Isakson then lofted a long sacrifice fly to score Pettaway.

The second Foxes run was then scored as Dana Ryan hit a pop double to short left. Ryan took third on a throwing error but was left stranded when Edino Arteaga struck out to end the inning and the rally.

Quad Cities scored its first run in the initial inning on a home run by Dave Cronley. The Angels took a 2-0 lead in the eighth when Cronley singled, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on a hit by Rudy Meoli.

Cronley led off in the tenth for Quad Cities with a walk. Relief pitcher Gene Kroon tried to pick Cronley off but threw the ball wildly past the first baseman. Cronley went to second on the miscue and scored on a single to left by John Doherty.

Appleton missed several scoring opportunities during the game. They had runners on second and third with only one out in the fifth but failed to score. Again in the sixth with one out, the Foxes had runners on first and second, but failed to advance them.

The Foxes meet Decatur tonight in a 7:30 p.m. game sponsored by the Appleton Retailers Association.

Cubs Whip Giants, 12-8

Expos Snap Losing Streak By Defeating Braves, 3 to 2

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Gene Mauch has finally tasted victory after two long weeks of bitter losses, the optimistic field general of the lowly Montreal Expos is filled only with thoughts of winning.

The Expos did it the hard way Friday night, coming from behind with a pair of runs in the seventh and getting a ninth inning homer from Coco Laboy, to beat Atlanta 3-2.

The triumph snapped Montreal's losing streak at 11 games—the longest in the majors this season—but still left the two-year-old expansion club at the bottom of the National League Eastern Division, 11½ games behind Chicago.

In other games, the Cubs routed San Francisco 12-8, Cincinnati downed New York 5-4 in an 11-inning game, Pittsburgh blanked Los Angeles 3-0, San Diego ripped St. Louis 3-2 and Houston stopped Philadelphia in 11 innings, 8-7.

Stopped Carty

Four Expos hurlers stopped the major league's hottest hitter, Rico Carty. Carty, the Braves' left fielder went 0-for-3 and dropped seven points to .428.

The Braves jumped to a 2-0 lead but the Expos tied it off starter George Stone in the seventh on three consecutive hits after two were out. John Boccabella doubled, a single by Bobby Wine followed and Bob Bailey's double tied it at 2-2.

Laboy then stroked his game winner off veteran reliever Hoyt Wilhelm in the ninth.

The Cubs bombed Juan Marichal and three successors for 16 hits—four by Jim Hickman increasing their lead over the Mets to four games. Ron Santo cracked a two-run homer for the Cubs while Ken Henderson and Willie McCovey slammed homers for the Giants.

Willie Mays was injured slightly when he collided in the outfield with Bob Taylor. The Giants' center fielder suffered bruised ribs and a slight cut finger.

20th Homer

Tony Perez drilled his 20th homer of the season—a three-run shot and Lee May lashed a tie-breaking single in the sixth as the Reds downed the Mets in a rain-marred game. The Mets

Orioles Feathers Ruffled

Brewers Drop 5th Straight, 3-2, Despite Bolin's Effort

MILWAUKEE (AP) — It's dangerous to ruffle the feathers of the Baltimore Orioles, Milwaukee pitcher Bob Bolin said.

He should know: he turned in one of the last-place Brewers' best pitching performances of the season Friday night, but annoyed the league's East Division leaders just enough to be penalized with a 3-2 defeat.

One of his pitches sent Baltimore batter Frank Robinson to the dirt in the sixth inning. In the ninth inning, plate umpire Ted Runge went to the mound to admonish Bolin.

"The umpire said I was getting too close to some of their players," Bolin said, adding he hadn't intended to bean Robinson or annoy any of the Oriole artillery.

"Why should I want to wake Frank up? You know Frank—you only make him a better hitter when you knock him down," Bolin said.

Manager Earl Weaver said he couldn't figure "why anyone should be throwing at us. It's not going to stop us from hitting the ball."

Fifth Straight Loss

Bolin, 31, held the Orioles to six hits as Milwaukee took a fifth consecutive loss. Two of them, however, were homers.

Merv Rettenmund broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning with his solo blast. Ellie Hendricks led off the next inning for Baltimore with a 385-footer into the bleachers. Baltimore had tied it in the second with Brooks Robinson's single and Dave Johnson's double.

Tommy Harper's double and Ted Kubiak's first-inning single scored a Brewer run. Kubiak walked and later came home on Dave McNally's wild pitch in the sixth for Milwaukee's other tally.

McNally, who pitched seven innings, similarly gave his foes only six hits. He got relief help from Eddie Watt to preserve his ninth victory against three losses.

"McNally had excellent stuff," Weaver said, "but hasn't worked enough. This was only his second start in 11 days."

"I still felt strong" when he was removed from the mound, McNally said, adding he agreed with Weaver, however, that "you can't keep walking men with a one run lead." He allowed six walks.

"But at least they weren't mashing the ball," he added.

The gate turnout of 13,548 provided the Brewers with a 230,621 attendance total for 23 home dates.

Former Oriole Gene Brabender is today's starting hurler with Jim Palmer (7-2) opening for the Orioles.

Packers Early Camp Greets 40 Players

GREEN BAY—Like the hare of ancient fable, realist John Spilis knows the race is not always to the swift.

The hawk-faced sophomore thus was not overly impressed by the celerity with which he covered Premontre Stadium's cinders during the Packers' speed and fitness tests Friday.

But the railbirds and a knowledgeable group of jogging buffs, not to mention Coach Phil Bengtson and his staff, most assuredly were.

And so, it developed, was Jack Clancy, the Green Bay native and recent Miama Dolphin who presumably will be Spilis's prime rival in the imminent struggle to succeed retired Boyd Dowler at split end.

The nearly 40 athletes assembled were required to step off two miles in 15 minutes or less, which proved to be something of a breeze for Spilis . . . if a drag for some less fortunate.

Easily the class of the field with a 12.40 clocking, John later shrugged his shoulders as he pondered that figure in a quiet corner of the dressing room.

What Does It Mean

"What does it mean," he rhetorically queried. "It's good time . . . but pro football isn't a track meet."

The inference was obvious—speed is only one of the qualifications that will be required to win selection as Dowler's successor in the highly competitive months ahead.

When it was suggested his performance indicated a determination to succeed in that competition, Spilis soberly observed, "The job's open—or at least I like to think it is."

And, he noted, he now has an invaluable year of experience behind him.

"That's very important, particularly for me," the slender Northern Illinois alumnus said. "I was probably more timid than most of the rookies last year. I was in a state of shock for the first couple of weeks."

Spilis insists he is making no predictions. "I'm going to do the best I can—my work is going to speak for itself," he said quietly.

Clancy, however, assessed the situation with candor.

"There's going to be a lot of competition," the late American Football League's 1967 Rookie of the Year asserted. "It's good to have the competition.

Good People Back

"There are some real good people coming back. Carroll Dale and Spilis. Spilis looks real good—he looks like a real fine athlete."

Clancy, who began his football career at Allouez's St. Matthew's School before winning all-Detroit honors in high school and All-America selection at the University of Michigan, also is satisfied with his own physical credentials after two years of knee problems.

"The legs feel just about normal," Said Jack, who sat out the last six games of the 1969 season with a "wheel" injury. "My speed is about as good as ever. Another month and a half (before training camp officially opens) should help. We'll be doing something we haven't done yet, so I should be a little quicker."

Only Ervin Hunt, a rookie defensive back from Fresno State, was able to approximate Spilis's brisk performance. Hunt, a sixth round draft choice, lapped the field in leading the day's first group home in 12.50.

Four of his fellow freshmen were somewhat less successful, however. Defensive back Alvin Matthews (Texas A & I), flankers Ken Ellis (Southern University) and Mike Carter (Sacramento State) and kicker Vaughn Conway were unable to cover the route in the prescribed 15 minutes.

Conway, in fact, was signalled to desist after 2½ laps when it became apparent that he was having difficulties.

Ass't. Coach Forrest Gregg explained, "I don't think he knew about our off-season program long enough." Conway is a free agent.

Needs Approval

Report ABA - NBA Merger Accord Later This Month

DALLAS (AP) — Merger negotiations between the American Basketball Association and the National Basketball Association are so close to completion that Congressional approval is expected to be asked by the end of June, the Times Herald said it learned Friday.

The two professional leagues have been authorized by the courts to continue merger negotiations, and merger committees are expected to complete the talks in Atlanta, June 17-18, the newspaper said.

"I anticipate that the merger committees will get together in Atlanta," Joe Geary, owner of the Texas Chaparrals of the ABA, said.

Geary is a member of the ABA merger committee.

Close Together

"And we think we are close enough together to where merger negotiations between the two leagues will be consummated at that time," Geary said.

"Of course, everything we do is subject to Congressional approval, but I expect we will be ready to ask for Congressional approval after our next meeting," he added.

"I am still optimistic that a merger will come about, and I feel we will be able to obtain Congressional approval," Geary said. "We cannot say we anticipate no problems, because you always have to consider all the possibilities, but I see no reason why we should not get Congressional approval."

Congressional approval is needed to exempt the basketball leagues from antitrust laws.

A suit by the NBA Players Association resulted in an injunction that stopped merger negotiations, but the injunction was later set aside.

Chuck Bayer's 36 Sets Pace

Chuck Bayer fired a par 36 to lead the latest session of the Appleton Municipal Good Fellowship Golf League on Reid Muni's back nine.

Jerry Spaay was runnerup, with a 38. The Royals (181 points) lead the team race, with the Tourneys second.

Mike to Try Baseball

Garret Forsakes Chiefs for Dodgers

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Garret, the No. 1 running back for Kansas City's Super Bowl champions, said Friday he will formally announce plans next Monday to quit playing pro football after the 1970 season and begin a professional baseball career.

Garrett, who throughout his standout career in the American Football League has maintained he would leave the sport when his original five-year contract ran out, told The Associated Press "I intend to play baseball and will negotiate with the Los Angeles Dodgers."

Garrett was selected in baseball's annual free agent draft by the Dodgers Friday on behalf of their Bakersfield, Calif. team in the California League. The one-time Heisman Trophy winner at the University of Southern California was the 781st pick in the draft.

Garrett currently is in New York City with his agent, Al Ross, and said he would explain all his plans Monday at a 2 p.m., CDT, press conference.

The 26-year-old jitterbugging running back has been one of the stars of the AFL ever since he joined the Chiefs for the 1966 season after the Kansas City club won out in a signing battle with the Los Angeles Rams that reportedly brought Garrett a $450,000 contract.

1,000 Yard Club

Garrett immediately stepped into the Chiefs' starting line-up and gained 801 yards rushing and 175 pass receiving his rookie year. In 1967, he joined the select 1,000-yard club by gaining 1,037 yards rushing and also caught 46 passes for 261 yards.

The 5-foot-9, 200-pounder, who some thought was too small for pro football, was slowed by injuries during the 1968 season but bounced back last season and was a key to the Chiefs' AFL championship drive and Super Bowl victory.

Garrett was in the top 10 in both rushing and receiving during the regular season, gaining 732 yards for a 4.4 average on the ground and catching 43 passes for 432 yards. He scored a touchdown on a five-yard run in the Chiefs' 23-7 Super Bowl victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

Blyleven Stops Senators in Debut, 2 to 1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nine years ago, Bert Blyleven knew nothing about the Little League. Today, the American League knows all about Bert Blyleven.

"He's everything people said he was," said Washington slugger Frank Howard after the Senators came out on the short end of a 2-1 score against the Minnesota Twins Friday night in Blyleven's major league debut.

The 19-year-old right-hander, called up from the American Association earlier this week to replace the injured Luis Tiant, hurled seven innings and allowed five hits. The only run came on Lee Maye's leadoff homer.

"I'm glad it happened that way," said Blyleven. "You know, you get the nervousness out of your system, but I would have liked to strike him out. I imagine Mr. Rigney and the rest of them got nervous with that home run."

Elsewhere in the AL, Baltimore edged Milwaukee 3-2, the New York Yankees ripped the Chicago White Sox 10-1, California nipped Cleveland 2-1, Oakland downed Detroit 4-2 and Boston beat Kansas City 4-2.

Born in Holland

The road to the majors for Ricalbert Blyleven began in Zeist, Holland, where he was born. The family moved to Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, in 1953 and to southern California in 1957, where Blyleven starred at Garden Grove High.

Blyleven was the Twins' third choice in the free-agent draft last June and went on to post a 7-2 record in two rookie leagues and a sensational 8-0 mark in the Florida Instructional League.

"What can I say about him," raved manager Bill Rigney, who calls Blyleven "The Baby." "He's the best looking prospect I've seen. I've got to rate him with all the real young players that I've ever looked at. He's just beautiful."

The Twins scored in the first off loser Casey Cox when Cesar Tovar walked, stole second and came around on Tony Oliva's single. They broke the tie in the fifth on Frank Quilici's infield hit. Blyleven's sacrifice and a single by Tovar. Ron Perranoski preserved Blyleven's victory.

Merv Rettenmund broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning with his fifth home run and Ellie Hendrick's fifth-inning homer, his third, was the winner as the Orioles nipped the Brewers. Dave McNally, with help from Eddie Watt in the eighth, became the AL's first nine-game winner.

Yanks in Rout

Bobby Murcer drove in three runs with two homers and a double and Gene Michael also knocked three runs across as the Yankees routed Chicago. Roy White also homered as Mel Stottlemyre scattered five hits in posting his first complete-game victory.

Oakland took advantage of a two-out throwing error by pitcher Earl Wilson to push across four unearned runs in the sixth inning and beat the Tigers. Wilson knocked down Felipe Alou's hard bouncer, then threw low past first as Bert Campaneris scored all the way from first and Alou wound up on third.

Joe Rudi's bloop single tied the score and, after a walk to Sal Bando, Don Mincher and Frank Fernandez singled runs home.

Billy Cowan's fourth-inning homer, his first of the season, provided the margin of victory as the Angels and Clyde Wright, 8-3, edged the Indians. The only Cleveland run was Vada Pinson's 200th career homer in the first.

Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer in the fifth boosted the Red Sox past the Royals. Bob Oliver homered for Kansas City.

fell to their third straight defeat despite solo homers by Joe Foy and Tommie Agee.

Bob Moose blanked the Dodgers on six hits and the Pirates' right-hander got support from run-scoring singles by Roberto Clemente, Matty Alou and Gene Alley. Moose struck out eight and didn't walk a batter.

Clarence Gaston drove in a pair of runs with a double and single to back the eight-hit pitching of winner Pat Dobson and reliever Roberto Rodriguez in the Padres' victory over the Cards.

Denis Menke stroked a run-scoring single in the 11th with one out as the Astros rode to their fourth straight victory. Norm Miller's sacrifice fly in the ninth had tied it for the Astros after Ron Stone's three-run double had given the Phils a 7-6 edge in the eighth.

Fondy's May Hurls Shutout Over Comets

Fond du Lac 3, Waupaca 0
Hustisford 1, Beaver Dam 0

Sophomore southpaw Dan May blanked Waupaca as Fond du Lac posted a 3-0 win over the Comets Friday in the opener of a sectional on the Cardinals field.

In other area competition Antigo eliminated Shawano from competition, 3-1, and qualified to represent Northeastern Wisconsin in the state tournament.

Tough Order

Fondy played today in the finals of its sectional for a return trip to the state event. Last year the Cardinals reached the semi-finals, while the Comets lost a quarter-final game.

May struck out 9 and didn't walk anyone as he breezed through the tough Waupaca batting order.

The Cardinals scored all of their runs in the fourth. An error opened the inning and a fielder's choice failed to cut anyone down. The second error of the inning loaded the bases. Dave Riederer hit into a fielder's choice with the play at home cutting down the runner.

Loser Dennis Riddle uncorked a wild pitch to allow the winning run to score. A walk reloaded the bases and then Riddle struck out a man for the second out. Ron Mattess, pinch hitting, had a broken bat single to center to score the final two runs before Riddle retired the side.

Riddle allowed only two hits, but it was one more than Fondy needed as May allowed only one man to reach second, and that in the first inning.

Shawano took a 1-0 lead in the third at the Seymour sectional but Antigo tied the game in the sixth and then put together two runs in the seventh for the win.

A walk, Greg Schofield's run producing double and Dave Kafka's single were the difference.

BATTING—Bobby Murcer, Yankees, slammed a pair of homers and a double, driving in three runs and leading New York to a 10-1 rout over the Chicago White Sox.

Curt Flood's Court Case Is Nearing Close

Prosecution May Call Veeck To be Witness

NEW YORK (AP) — The Curt Flood case has reached the seventh-inning stretch with possibly four more witnesses, including controversial former club owner Bill Veeck, scheduled to take the witness stand next week.

Veeck, a onetime owner of the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, is on the lineup card being carried about by Flood's attorneys, but at the moment there is still some question about whether he will be sent up to hit.

If Veeck were to testify, he likely would do so Wednesday, closing out the case in which Flood has brought a $3 million antitrust challenging the legality of baseball's reserve system.

According to the timetable established by the attorneys, baseball will call its last defense witness, an economist, when the case resumes Monday and then Flood's lawyers will call Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players' Association, and Dick Moss, its attorney, as rebuttal witnesses.

Negotiated Faithfully

The defendants' club owners called John Gaherin, their labor relations' negotiator, as their 10th witness Friday. He testified that the owners had negotiated in good faith in an attempt to reach agreement with the Players' Association on modifying the reserve system.

Gaherin pointed out that the owners had recognized their obligation to bargain collectively on the issue during 1967 and had done so in several meetings with the Players Association before institution of Flood's suit halted proceedings.

Gaherin said the Players Association had first made specific recommendations in August last year and said the owners "were shocked by the extent of the proposals" because of the "obvious harm they would do to baseball."

Neitzel Hurls No-Hitter in Softball Tilt

MENASHA — It took him five days but Denny Neitzel of Jitter's Bar completed a no-hitter as the Menashans took one extra inning to edge Hotel Waupun, 1-0, in the Jiffer's Memorial Day Softball Tournament Friday night.

Neitzel hurled seven perfect innings Sunday night before rain halted his masterpiece. However, his Jitter's mates weren't able to get him any runs until the first extra frame Friday.

The young Oshkosh righthander lost his perfect effort when he hit the second batter to face him with a pitched ball in the Friday's stanza.

Jitter's scored on Denny Roff's double, an error and a wild pitch.

Defending champion Club 616 of Green Bay bested Maritime Bar, Appleton, 4-2, with Mary Mewlin getting the win and Arlyn Pues taking the loss. The winners made three runs and five of their six hits in the first frame.

Benkowski Budweiser of Green Bay pounded out 17 hits to top Schouten Oil, Kaukauna, 10-2. Dick Douville gained the win with Bob Hoover, the loser.

Games today at Jefferson Park are Jack's Rose Hill, Kaukauna, vs. Military Golfland, Green Bay, at 7 p.m. and Appleton Pizza Hut vs. Jitter's at 8:30. Semi-finals are scheduled Saturday afternoon and evening.

Neenah Tops Kaukauna '9' In Legion Play

KAUKAUNA — The Neenah Legion Baseball team toppled Kaukauna, 15-4, in the non-league opener for both teams here Friday night.

Dene Storch and Tim Bigalke held the losers to two hits while Neenah pounded out 17 safeties off three Kaukauna hurlers. Tom Nagan was the starter and loser. The Twin City pitchers combined for 17 strikeouts.

Bill Luebke led the winning attack with five singles. John Pierce had three singles, Jim Popp, a single and a double, and Bob Block, two singles.

Scott Robach and Al Borchardt had Kaukauna's two hits.

Neenah was blanked until the fifth when it collected four runs. It repeated the total in the sixth, came up with two in the eighth and closed with five in the ninth.

The losers garnered one run in the first, two in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Out With Cough

Belmont Loses Personality

By ED SCHUYLER JR
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Belmont Stakes had no Personality today, a fact that considerably dimmed the glamor of the race called "the test of the champion."

Personality, owned by Mrs Ethel D. Jacobs and trained by her son, John, was declared out of the 1½-mile classic Friday because of a slight cough and nasal discharge.

This cut the size of the field to 10 3-year-olds and left the 102nd running of the final jewel of the Triple Crown without the winners of the first two—the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

Derby winner Dust Commander was sent to owner Robert E. Lehmann's farm with a sore ankle after finishing ninth in the Preakness won by Personality.

Personality's withdrawal threw the early favorite's role to Raymond M. Curtis' My Dad George, second in the Derby and Preakness, for the Belmont scheduled to go off at approximately 4:30 p.m., CDT.

Television coverage was set for 5-6 p.m. and radio coverage for 5:25-5:45 p.m., both by CBS.

The Jacobses were represented by High Echelon, who closed fast for a third in the Kentucky Derby and fourths in the Preakness and Jersey Derby, the latter also won by Personality.

Others entered were Aggressively, Top Time, Naskra, Delaware Chief, Son Excellence, Hark The Lark, Climber and Needles N Pens.

With 10 starters, the race was worth a gross value of $158,750, with $116,000 to the winner.

Personality's regular jockey, Eddie Belmonte, grabbed a Belmont ride on Her-Jac Stable's Naskra.

"As a trainer, my first obligation is to the horse," Jacobs said in announcing Personality's withdrawal at a news conference in the Belmont Park press box.
